MRS. HAINS BEGINS FIGHT FOR CHILDREN

DEMOCRATS NAME WHITE FOR CONGRESS

Sulloway and the Amoskeag Mills Scored in First New Hampshire District.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 29.—To make their fight in the First Congressional District against Cyrus Adams Sulloway, Republican, the Democrats to-day named the Hon. Michael J. White, Mayor of Dover. The Independence Party had already chosen Major Jared A. Greene of Laconia.

The feature of the Democratic convention in City Hall was the speech of Samuel W. Emery, Jr., of Portsmouth, who said that the navy yard in his city might as well be abolished for all the help it gets through Sulloway. Emery called the Amoskeag Mills of Manchester the "friend and ally" of Sulloway. He said Sulloway had gone up and down the district defending the high tariff and describing its power to bring good wages, while the fact was that the Amoskeag had been increasing dividends and reducing wages.

The Amoskeag machine was given still another blow to-day when the Democrats of the Second Councillor District chose Lewis G. Gilman, a popular druggist, to make the run against Dr. Henry W. Boutwell.

HOLD TWO IN $1,000 EACH AS HIGHWAYMEN

Edward Butler of Lynn was held up, chloroformed and robbed while in the way to the home of relatives on Hillside street, Roxbury, on the night of September 19, by four young men. When he was able to reach the Roxbury Crossing station he said he had lost $.9, a watch and two rings.

Policemen Wragg and Wallace were put on the trail of the highwaymen and arrested John A. Mullin of No. 156 Cedar street, Michael Quinn of No. 101 Longwood avenue, Frank Doherty of No. 8 Worthington street, and John Hill of No. 1 Alton street, on suspicion that they are the robbers.

They were held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 each by Judge Williams in the Roxbury Court to-day. On the further charge of assault with intent to rob, Mullin was held in $200 more.

SAVE 30 FROM DEATH AT FIRE IN TENEMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Penned in by a rush of panic-stricken neighbors from the upper floors of the six-story tenement at No. 214 East One Hundred and Second street, thirty persons narrowly missed death early to-day by suffocation in a lower hall of the building. The tenants, frightened by fire, were packed against the hall door, which opened inward, and could not release themselves on account of the press of others behind.

Not until the firemen of Engine Company No. 53 battered down the door with axes were the people released. Many were almost unconscious from fright and from smoke of a fire that blazed at the rear of the hall.

The fire started in the grocery store of Jacob Silberglelt on the ground floor. It is supposed it was started by the explosion of an oil tank. The flames gained rapid headway, and when they were seen by Policeman Podolok they had eaten their way through a partition into the rear of the hallway of the tenement.

POLO GROUNDS, Sept. 29.—Two games with the Phillies was laid out for the Giants this afternoon and as two victories will be the sweetest things on earth for them just now they went in with a determination to make matters hum.

A double win will give the home team another boost over the Cubs, for the Chicago bunch of protesters are only scheduled for one game in Cincinnati, so it was up to the Giants to put forth the best there was in them and full well did they appreciate the fact. The scare the Phillies threw into the home camp yesterday was a lesson and there was not one of the home players but was on edge for the brace of contests.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Matthewson fanned Grant, using only four balls. McCormick collared Knabe's long swat. Titus singled to left. Magee doubled to left centre, but Titus overran third and was pounced on by Devlin, who had received Seymour's throw. NO RUNS.

Tenney drew free transportation. Herzog sacrificed, trying to dodge the ball, and died, McQuillen to Bransfield. On Dooin's wide throw to second to catch Tenney napping, Fred took third. Bresnahan tore off a sweet triple far over Osborn's dome and Tenney scored. McCormick batted in place of Donlin, who was hurt in sliding to third yesterday. Mike was on the coaching lines, however. McCormick dropped a safe single to left and Bresnahan romped home. Seymour popped a safe single to left and Bresnahan romped home. Seymour popped a foul for Dooin to smother. Devlin was non-suited and strolled to first. Bransfield put out Devore all by his lonesome. TWO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Bridwell forded Bransfield's clip to Tenney in style. Osborne did the whiff, as Matthewson's fadeaway had him guessing. Shean couldn't solve them, either, and the crowd made merry giving Matthewson the glad mitt. NO RUNS.

Shean and Bransfield had no trouble with Bresnahan. McCormick walked. McQuillen shot Seymour's hot shot to Knabe, forcing out McCormick. Seymour overran second, stealing, and was nailed, Dooin to Knabe. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Seymour landed Dooin's line smash. Bridwell chucked McQuillen's weak splash to Tenney. Matty made a neat stop of Grant's weakling and handed it to Tenney. NO RUNS.

Bridwell waited long enough to draw a skull ticket, but was forced out, Grant to Shean on a very close decision on Mathewson's bunt. Knabe tossed Tenney's stiff stab to Shean, forcing out Matthewson. Tenney stole second, assisted by Bransfield's low throw. Herzog drew a walk, but Tenney was pinched stealing by Dooin's throw to Grant. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING.

Devlin grabbed Knabe's wicked scooter and chucked to Tenney. Matty shot Titus's spongy tap to Tenney. Magee fanned. NO RUNS.

Grant threw out Devlin. Devore died on a similar play. Bridwell boosted an easy one, Chance to Osborne. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING.

Bransfield got in a double to right just too low for Devore. Seymour laid just right to nail Osborne's liner. Shean fanned. Bransfield was out stealing. Bresnahan to Devlin. NO RUNS.

Matty fouled a high one to Dooin. Tenney drove a corking single to centre. Herzog hammered a peach one sacker to left. Bresnahan had his eye on the ball again and swiped against the left field grand stand fence for two sacks, scoring Tenney and Herzog. McCormick floated a sky seeker to Osborne. Seymour out, Shean to Bransfield, but Bresnahan tried to score on the play. Bresnahan had his ankle wrenched when he slid in. TWO RUNS.

SOUTHSIDE BASEBALL GROUNDS, CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—A chance to see the White Sox and the Red Sox in two games in one day with no intermission was too big an attraction to miss by the crazed Windy City fans and they rolled out to the field, getting an early start.

That ten-inning tie of yesterday was the cause of the whole thing, as it necessitated playing the draw-off at the earliest possible moment, and as the Red Sox decamp tomorrow for pastures new to-day was the only chance possible to get rid of the extra contest.

It meant some hard travelling for the pennant seekers, as the result was everything to them, while the Red Sox, being out of the race, were not letting any team have a cinch getting away with them.

ABANDON HOPE FOR CRUISER "YANKEE"

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 29.—Owing to the heavy seas the wreckers working on the stranded cruiser Yankee have practically abandoned their work. The hull is impaled upon the jutting point of Spindle Rock, and all night stood the pounding of the surf.

This morning she had settled perceptibly in the water, and a heavy wind lashed the breakers over her with great force.

The gale has subsided without breaking up the stranded warship, but it is admitted by best experts that the chance of salvage is small. Nothing was heard from her by wireless for four hours to-day. At 1 o'clock communication was resumed and the following message received:

"Don't send any more messages. Engine won't work. Too much water. Received your weather messages all right."

Wife of Army Officer Who Killed Man Alleged to Have Broken Up Home Opens Her Own Defence—Demands Custody of Little Ones.

Beginning a battle for her children, Mrs. Claudia L. Hains, wife of Captain Peter C. Hains, now awaiting trial for the murder of William Annis of New York, will to-morrow give to the world her story of the events which led up to the tragedy at the Bay View Yacht Club in July.

The wife's side of the whole affair is to be made public, and she is to tell in the Supreme Court of Kings County, New York, why her husband, with his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, standing by, slew W. E. Annis. The sensational charges made against her character she will bitterly refute.

Attorney Fred L. Norton has forwarded to New York a 3,000-word deposition by Mrs. Hains, which is to be read in the Kings County Court to-morrow when her motion for alimony and the custody of her children will be heard. Through her New York counsel, Attorney Frank G. Wild of No. 277 Broadway, New York, Mrs. Hains has determined to exhaust every legal resource unless she be granted the care of her own three children.

She will not be in New York in person. Attorney Wild has decided it is not necessary for Mrs. Hains to personally appear in the Kings County Court. While her sworn statement is being read in the court in New York, Mrs. Hains will make public her story in Boston.

Denies Confession.

Through the BOSTON AMERICAN she has already defended herself and said that she was hounded by T. Jenkins Hains, and that he poisoned the mind of Captain Hains. She has denied that she ever signed a confession knowing what she was signing.

But in the statement which the wife is ready to publishe to the world she will tell everything that the court may know that as the mother of her children she has the legal and moral right to have them with her.

Under the leadership of General Hains, father of Captain Hains, the imprisoned officer's family is prepared to make a hard fight against the mother's demands for her little ones.

Mrs. Claudia Hains knows full well that she must be prepared to defend herself against all the charges of intimacy with Annis that will be brought.

Knowing this, Mrs. Hains has made her statement exhaustive, covering all the important events of her life for several years. She declares that when this is known everything will be known: that she will withhold nothing.

Denies Night Auto Trips.

In the story of her life with Hains, which she sends to the Kings County courts, she denies that there was anything wrong in her relations with Publisher Annis.

She will deny all of the sensational stories of night auto rides with the man and the stories of orgies at the fort which have been told concerning her since Captain Hains shot Annis on the float of the Bayside Yacht Club.

"The case will positively come up tomorrow," said Attorney Wild this afternoon. "Mrs. Hains is anxious to see her children again and to have them with her and we will tolerate no more delays. It was to have come to trial to-day, but at the urgent request of Attorney Percy for Captain Hains we granted a delay of one more day."

SOUTH END GROUNDS, Sept. 29.—It was heavy going for the Doves and the Dodgers in their second game, which the visitors were after because they dropped the first one in the series and wanted to break even before the third and last meeting at the old field to-morrow.

As an intercity championship the game was all to the merry, but the backing behind the team was rather slim, the Doves ruling pin money favorites over the gang from the City of Churches, with few takers.

Both teams heard the end of the season calling and were willing to rush the games along that they might get back to the old fireside and relate stories of the fray which they had passed through during the long and arduous campaign.

The playing weather holding good caused the veterans and the new players to stretch themselves in the autumnal windup, and the fans got the benefit of seeing some mid-season diamond work and watching the bulletin board with the latest returns from the battlefields, where the pennant chasers were sweating blood, kept the entertainment alive.

DEPARTMENT CHIEFS WROTH

Incensed at what they term "unwarranted meddling" on the part of Mayor's Secretary James C. White and City Collector Charles R. Brown, several heads of city departments are to-day preparing to send a protest to Mayor Hibbard against further investigations o ftheir departments by two officials.

Secretary White and Collector Brown were assigned by the Mayor to investigate the various departments. The department heads, however, have not taken kindly to their probings.

The latest report from the Mayor's private finance commission alleges extravagant expenditure of money in the purchase of electrical supplies by the supply department and of beds for the Gallop's Island infectious hospital by the Health Department.

TRUST PROSECUTIONS SHOWN BY PRESIDENT

MAKES PUBLIC LETTER THAT SHOWS ADMINISTRATION'S RECORD FOR 1908.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Supplemental to his reply to William Jennings Bryan relative to the trust prosecutions during his administration, President Roosevelt to-day made public a letter from John H. Marble, attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission, in which that official reminds the President there are still other prosecutions which the President overlooked and which redound to the credit of the administration.

The letter which is issued at the White House as rather an additional answer to Mr. Bryan, is as follows:

"To the President:

"Referring to the letter addressed by you to Mr. Bryan, which appears in the papers this day:

Work of 1908 Omitted.

"That portion of your letter dealing with prosecutions under the act to regulate commerce seems not to include the work done during year 1908. The showing made by you is, therefore, even less impressive than present facts would warrant.

"So far as reports received by the division of prosecutions of this commission indicate, indictments for rebating have been found against railroad companies during the present year as follows:

"Southern Pacific Company, northern district of California.

"Southern Pacific Company, southern district of California, three indictments.

Railroad Prosecutions.

"Chespeake & Ohio Railway, eastern district of Virginia, three indictments.

"Illinois Central Railroad, northern district of Illinois.

"Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, northern district of Illinois.

"St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad, eastern district of Arkansas.

"Missouri Pacific Railway, eastern district of Arkansas.

"Illinois Terminal Railroad, southern district of Illinois.

"Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway, western district of Missouri.

"St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, eastern district of Missouri.

"Indictments against shippers receiving rebates have been returned as follows:

"Illinois Glass Company, southern district of Illinois.

"California Pine Box and Lumber Company, northern district of California.

"T. H. Bunch, eastern district of Arkansas.

"W. R. Johnston, eastern district of Virginia.

"Warner, Moore Company, eastern district of Virginia.

"In addition to the above, a number of indictments have been returned against various small shippers for misbilling.

"Indictments against traffic officials have been returned as follows:

"W. C. Smith, freight traffic manager, Missouri Pacific Railway, eastern district of Arkansas.

"A. P. Gilbert, assistant gen. freight agent, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, eastern district of Virginia.

Fined for Rebates.

"In the western district of New York during the present year the Mutual Transit Company, a Lake boat line, was convicted of giving rebates and a fine of $5,000 imposed.

"In the northern district of Ohio the Toledo Ice and Coal Company pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving rebates and paid a fine of $3,000.

"In the western district of Michigan the Stearns Salt and Lumber Company pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving rebates and paid a fine of $20,000.

"In the southern district of New York the Central Vermont railway pleaded guilty to a charge of giving rebates and paid a fine of $1,000.

"During the present year, the packing house cases, referred to by you, have been decided by the Supreme Court, the conviction being sustained, the jurisdiction clause of the Elkins act being held constitutional and the law against rebating being otherwise materially strengthened.

"All the court decisions but three rendered during the year have served to strengthened the act, so far as it prohibits rebating. These decisions are the decisions rendered by Judge Grosscup in the Standard Oil case at Chicago, the decision rendered by Judge Dallas in the Camden Iron Works case at Philadelphia and the decision rendered by Judge Gray in the commodities clause case at Philadelphia.

"I am taking the liberty of addressing you with this information because it seems to me to be of importance that you should know all the work that is being done to make effective the prohibition of discrimination. Respectfully,

"JOHN H. MARBLE, Attorney,
"Interstate Commerce Commission."

COOLER, BUT COLD WAVE IS DELAYED

The cold wave which has chilled the West, and which was predicted here, is not to strike Boston yet awhile. That's to-day's edict from the official weather man.

To-day is about 10 degrees cooler than yesterday, the thermometer to-day registering 61. The most that can be expected is a drop to about 50 by to-morrow. On to-day's card is showers, with clearing westerly winds to-night and a decided drop in the humidity. After Wednesday, says the forecaster, the temperature will rise again, but the atmosphere will be clearer and more comfortable.

HERO GETS $25 AND MEDAL FOR RESCUING BOY

Others Who Risked Lives Are Rewarded by Massachusetts Humane Society.

BOSTON MEN ON THE LIST

James T. McCauley of No. 45 Newman street, South Boston, has been awarded a bronze medal and $25 by the Massachusetts Humane Society for the bravery he showed in saving the life of five-year-old Clyde Rafuse of Roxbury, who fell overboard from Harvard bridge on June 17. He had a hard struggle to reach shore with the child. A long line of cars was held up on the bridge while the passengers watched the rescue.

Assessor Patrick Fitzgerald of No. 60 High street, Southbridge, was given a silver medal for saving the life of Mrs. Birdie McGraw, who jumped into the Quinebaug river in May. Oliver K. P. Phinney of Providence, a New York, New Haven & Hartford engineer, received a bronze one for his rescue of a small boy in Mill river at Taunton.

Another bronze trophy was presented Edward J. Brougham of No. 57 West Sixth street, South Boston, who risked his life in a vain attempt to save a drowning man near the Broadway bridge. Edward L. McKendrew of No. 276 Princeton street, East Boston, saved little Nadine Bowman in the Back Bay Fens and got a bronze medal. Abraham L. Leguin, who aided him, was given a certificate.

SQUADRON TO ESCORT BRIDE OF ABRUZZI

Special Cable to Hearst's News Service.

ROME, Sept. 29.—A squadron of four cruisers from the Italian navy will escort the Duke and Duchess of the Abruzzi from New York to Italy after their marriage. It was tacitly confirmed to-day in court circles that the Duke will wed Miss Katherina Elkins, the American heiress in Washington, D. C., about the middle of November. The Duke has already secured a furlough from the navy and will leave Rome sometime in October.

BIGAMIST IN DEATH LEAP

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—George von Der Schulenburg, a drug clerk, died in the Harlem Hospital early to-day, after escaping arrest on a charge of bigamy by throwing himself from a fourth-story window down an airshaft at No. 169 East One Hundred and Twenty-eight street.

The man had gone to the house to see his wife and beg her to return to their former home at No. 688 East One Hundred Thirty-ninth street. She left Von Der Schulenburg some weeks ago, after discovering, she says, that the man had another wife living, although he had said she was dead.

THE BANDANNAS TO PLAY BALL

Once a year, on October 1, the members of the Williams and Walker musical comedy hold a field day, no matter in what city they are playing. This year they happen to be in Boston "In Bandanna Land" at the Orpheum, and the two stars have arranged for a gala occasion at the American League grounds Thursday afternoon. There will be a series of sporting events for both the men and the women, and prizes will be awarded to the winners by Messrs. Williams and Walker. There will also be a baseball game between nines chosen from the men in the "Bandanna Land" company. They will be called "The Right Church" nine and the "Buddies," the former under the captaincy of Bert Williams and the "Buddies" under George W. Walker.

GREAT FLOODS SWEEPS INDIA

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 29.—Unprecedented rains have caused disastrous floods in Deccan. The river Musi, which flows through Hyderabad, has risen sixty feet, all the bridges have collapsed, and it is reported that thousands of native houses have been washed away.

The loss of life has been heavy. Corpses are strewn everywhere.

The native hospital at Hyderabad collapsed, and the occupants were buried in the ruins.

Fifteen inches of rain fell in thirty-six hours.

FURIOUS GALE SWEEPS COAST; YACHT WRECKED

Incoming vessels this morning brought reports of furious squalls which raged all along the New England coast, at times attaining cyclonic violence. The squalls struck the coast at 2 o'clock, but by 7 o'clock the storm had abated and there was not much sea. Seagoing vessels also reported fierce squalls during the past eight hours.

At City Point the Mistral, a small yacht belonging to the Columbia Yacht Club, was dashed on the runway of the City Point Yacht Club, and both runway and boat were seriously damaged.

Several small yachts and power boats were seriously damaged in Dorchester Bay and in the harbor.

H. S. SENIORS AT BOY'S FUNERAL

Funeral services were held this afternoon in the home of his parents, No. 38 Devon road, over the body of Samuel T. Parks, the Newton High School senior who was killed in an automobile accident in Lexington on Saturday last.

Practically all of his fellow pupils in the high school attended the services and several teachers were present. There were many floral tributes to his memory. The services were conducted by the Rev. A. S. Brown, formerly pastor of the Newton Centre Unitarian Church. The body was taken to Mount Auburn Cemetery for interment.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Sixteen dollars was the price paid for the much talked of portrait of Evelyn Thaw, seized by the Sheriff to satisfy an attachment obtained by Mme. Elise Hartwig, milliner, against the young woman for gowns and hats.

The sale was in the rotunda of the County Court House. There was a great crowd present, not to bid, but to see. The picture, a reproduction of Harrington Mann's portrait, is done in sepia. The auctioneer, Joseph P. Day, carried it in with enough wrappings about it to have preserved an Egyptian mummy.

It is said the purchaser was acting for the attorneys of Mme. Hartwig, who had instructed him to bid it in unless it brought a certain figure.

DONALD BRIAN PITCHES LAST GAME TO-DAY

Star Thespian Twirler Goes Up Against "The American Idea" Team.

FANNED "MIKE" DONLIN

Donald Brian, who has scored such a hit as Prince Danilo in "The Merry Widow" at the Tremont Theatre, makes his last appearance as a baseball player at 11 o'clock this morning at the American League grounds, where he occupies the pitcher's box with the crack "Merry Widow" baseball team in the game against "The American Idea" team.

Mr. Brian is one of the best ball players on the stage. He learned the game in this city when he was a South Boston youngster, and has always retained his interest in it, playing at every opportunity. Two years ago, in Chicago, while he was with "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," Mr. Brian pitched a game against a team whose pitcher was "Mike" Donlin, the famous outfielder and captain of the New York Giants. Mr. Brian not only won his game, but twice struck out the hard-hitting Donlin.

Although Mr. Brian loves the game, he has decided to give it up in order to save all his vitality for his difficult role in "The Merry Widow." Prince Danilo is one of the most taxing parts physically that has been written. At the close of his performance every night Mr. Brian, though fit as a fiddle, is exhausted. It has been computed that he dances three-eighths of a mile at every performance. So in the future he will devote all his energies to "The Merry Widow." The team will line up this afternoon as follows: M. Barrett, c.; Donald Brian, p.; B. Cameron, 1b.; H. Shaw, 2b.; C. Lanigan, 3b.; George Shannon, s.s.; Edward Templeton, l.f.; George Ingersoll, c.f.; James Twitchell, r.f.

"The American Idea" team will not divulge the names of its players until the hour of the game.

FIND BODY OF MISSING MAN NEAR DOCKS

NEWBURYPORT, Sept. 29.—The body of John Butler, forty years old, a carpenter, who had been missing several days, was found floating in the water near the Atkinson Coal Company's docks to-day by three fishermen as they were putting off in a dory. Butler's body was evidently in the water some time before it was discovered by Gardner Lattime, Maynard Eaton and Clarence Lunt.

There was a deep cut on his skull and in his neck. Whether he was a victim of foul play, fell from the dock or was a suicide is not yet known. The police theory is that he was sitting on the wharf, lost his balance and sustained the injuries, as he fell a distance of forty feet to the water.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

The American Federation of Labor has issued its call for the twenty-eighth annual convention which will open November 9 at Denver. The convention will continue in session until all business is completed.

Representation will be on the following basis: From national or international unions, one delegate for less than 4,000 members, two delegates for 4,000 or more, three delegates for 8,000 or more, four delegates for 16,000 or more, five delegates for 32,000 or more, six delegates for 64,000 or more; seven delegates for 128,000 or more and so on. From central bodies and State federations and from local trade unions not having national or international unions and from federal labor unions one delegate.

At a recent meeting Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor made a report to the members of the executive board, covering the last eleven months, showing a balance on hand of $129,295. The receipts for the eleven months were $184,606, or $1,386 in excess of the expenditures. During this time, charters were issued to 216 subordinate organizations, three being for State and sixty-nine for central city federations.

LABOR NOTES.

Bricklayers' No. 3 have already begun arrangements for the biennial convention of the Bricklayers and Masons which will be held in Boston, January, 1910. Edward Roemer was chosen a member of the joint city committee of the Bricklayers and Masons and George K. Watson was elected delegate to the Boston Central Labor Union and the Building Trades section.

Max Biller and Max Benjamin, delegates to the convention of Women's Trade Union League Sunday, reported the proceedings at last night's meeting of Garment Workers' Union No. 1. The New England label agent will be in this district next month.

Steam Fitters' No. 22 last night voted unanimously to continue the Saturday half holidays. All members were reported working. Three non union shops were unionized during the past week.

International President Daniel J. Tobin leaves next Thursday morning for Indianapolis, the international headquarters.

Ship, Machinery and Derrick Riggers No. 10,315 will hold an important meeting next Thursday night at No. 19 Border street, East Boston on matters of trade importance.

New England Sheet Metal Workers will hold their semi-annual convention in Franklin Hall, Worcester, the last Sunday in October. President Bradford of Hartford No. 77, will preside.

Vice-President P. J. Thornton was elected President last night by Stationary Firemen No. 3, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Michael Murphy. Michael Lyons was elected vice-president. President Thornton was elected delegate to the State Branch convention of the A. F. of L. which opens in Lowell, October 12.

Carpenters No. 33 received a financial report of the standing of the United Brotherhood of Sarpenters and Joiners of America last night from Daniel H. Deegan, their representative to the convention that began its sessions last Tuesday at Salt Lake City. The balance of cash on hand is $341,065.39.

Carpenters District Council will hold an important meeting next Thursday night at No. 30 Hanover street, where it is expected that changes may be proposed in the working agreement with the Master Builders' Association.

John J. Barry, international president of the Theatrical Stage Employes Alliance, left this morning for Philadelphia to resume work in adjusting local trade matters there.

IRRIGATION EXPERTS MEET

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Sept. 29.—The sixteenth National Irrigation Congress opened here to-day with an enthusiastic number of delegates present, principally drawn from those sections of the West which depend upon an unnatural water supply. In the course of the business the question of natural resources was touched upon, and it was universally agreed that the government ought to utilize every means within its power to conserve the minerals, forests and other natural resources of the land.

When F. C. Goudy delivered his address he dwelt at length upon the question of natural resource wealth.

KNOCKED DOWN AND INJURED

Mrs. Ella M. Clark, employed in the office of her brother-in-law, Clerk Louis A. Cook of the Norfolk Superior Court, was knocked down and injured in Memorial square, Dedham, to-day by a horse owned and driven by Otis Withington, a carpenter and builder.

Policeman Maurice Brown jumped into John O'Neil's carriage and pursued Withington. He overtook him about one hundred yards from the scene of the accident and took him into custody. Mrs. Clark had her head badly bruised and is suffering from the shock.

WATCH SUNDAY AMERICAN FOR LIST OF EUROPEAN TOUR CANDIDATES

Watch next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN for a complete list of candidates entered up to next Saturday in the AMERICAN'S Free European Tour contest to determine the thirty-six most popular Sunday School teachers in Boston and suburbs.

You will be surprised at the SIZE OF THE LIST and the early activity of some of the candidates.

Also watch next Sunday's AMERICAN for pictures of a bevy of pretty young teachers who have entered, and especially for the picture of the young woman for whom the FIRST ballots were cast.

SHE IS A DORCHESTER GIRL.

She is well known and very popular. A small army of friends are working industriously for her, and they have sent word to the European Tour editor that she will show up prominently in the race as the contest progresses.

The standing of all contestants will be published in next Sunday's AMERICAN, as well as the names.. Although the preliminary vote is not heavy, it shows that all of the candidates are hustling . Every one of them is anxious to win one of those FREE TOURS OF EUROPE. And everybody agrees that the prizes ARE WELL WORTH THE EFFORT.

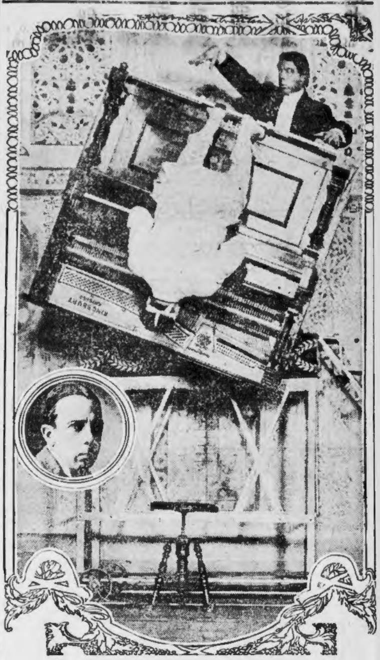
There is still plenty of time to enter the contest and have your name included in the list of contestants on Sunday. A single ballot will start you.

NAMES AND BALLOTS FOR PUBLICATION SUNDAY SHOULD ALL BE IN BEFORE SATURDAY AT 4 P. M., at which hour the counting will begin.

Write to the European Tour editor for any information you desire. All communications will be promptly acknowledged.

ALL CANDIDATES, OR PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES, SHOULD REMEMBER THAT DISTRICT No. 9 (Boston) INCLUDES DORCHESTER, SOUTH BOSTON, EAST BOSTON, JAMAICA PLAIN, ROXBURY and WEST ROXBURY, ALLSTON, BRIGHTON, CHARLESTOWN, ETC.

ONAIP, FAMOUS ORIENTAL WIZARD, AT THE FOOD FAIR



Visitors to-day at the big food fair of the Boston Retail Association were startled at the marvellous performances of Onaip, famous magician from the Orient.

Onaip is the star performer in the free vaudeville which is to be one of the continuous attractions at the food fair.

Onaip is a mystery, a musical mystery and a defiance of the law of gravitation.

There is something uncanny about this performance by Onaip. It is a common expression that music is "moving." The music (?) of some aleged pianists is extremely moving. It moves the audience right away.

But in this case the audience remains spellbound, while the piano, player and music do the moving. There's the rub. They "do move," as the old saying goes, and the audience sees it and yet can't believe it.

INJURED FOOTBALL STAR WILL RECOVER

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 29.—Lee Gilbert Warren of Piqua, Ohio, who went insane after the Yale football practice yesterday, was much improved to-day at the college infirmary. Dr. Hammond, the attending physician, said that Warren was fully out of danger and would be able to leave the infirmary before the end of the week.

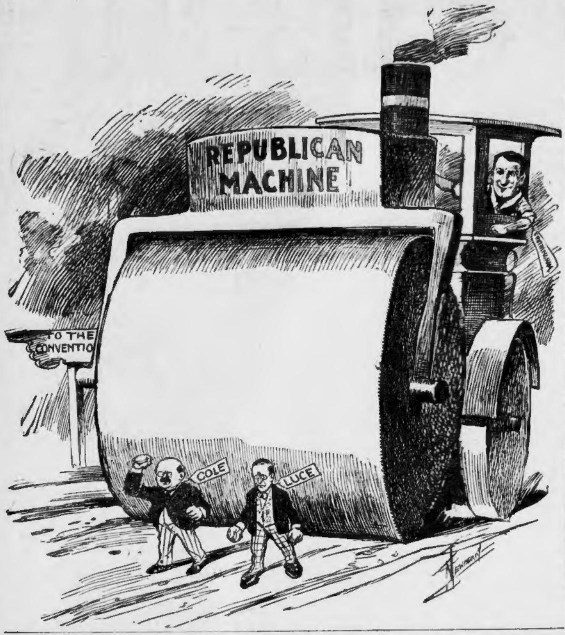
TOOT! TOOT!



BROKER GAVE $7,000 AUTO TO ACTRESS

"It's Nobody's Business What Mr. Brown Gives Me," Declares Edna Wallace Hopper.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"It's nobody's business what present Mr. Brown gives me," says Edna Wallace Hopper, the actress, in speaking of the $7,000 auto which was presented her by her fiance, A. O. Brown, head of the brokerage firm whose financial methods are now the subject of a searching probe by Receiver Littlefield and the federal bankruptcy commissioner.

Brown and the other four members of the firm are now under criminal charge of larceny, preferred by Mrs. Ellen S. Abernethy. They have been "mugged" and measured for the "Rogues' Gallery," and are awaiting trial under the larceny charge, in addition to having their bankruptcy cast handled by the Federal courts.

Admission was wrung from A. O. Brown, the senior partner, yesterday, that he had given the automobile to Miss Hopper.

"What became of the $7,000 auto you bought last March?" asked Receiver Littlefield.

"I gave it away last March."

"To whom?"

"Miss Hopper."

The "Miss Hopper" evasively alluded to by Brown is Miss Edna Wallace Hopper. The actress admits it herself. She is engaged to Brown.

But They Will Wed.

"The failure of Mr. Brown's firm will not affect our wedding plans," she says. "I am engaged to marry Mr. Brown, but the wedding date has not been set yet. I did get a $7,000 auto from him. I still have it. And it is nobody's business what presents Mr. Brown makes me."

"I don't see anything remarkable in a gentleman giving a lady a motor-car. It was perfectly natural for him to do so."

The creditors of the defunct brokerage firm and the receiver who are trying to find out what became of the firm's cash can take the declaration of Miss Hopper that she "still has the auto" for what comfort they can extract from it.

The hearing also brought out further auto-giving habits that the members of the firm had. Edward F. Buchanan of the firm admitted he had given a car to George R. Hunt, Jr.

This was brought out during questions from the receiver about a $5,000 note of Hunt's that Buchanan had. The receiver was trying to find out if that note couldn't be collected, so that the creditors of the firm could benefit by it.

"Mr. Hunt declares," said the receiver, "that he does not owe you anything that you told him the note was satisfied and that you gave him an automobile the next day."

"No," said Buchanan, "the note was never paid."

"Never satisfied by services rendered?" asked Receiver Littlefield.

"No."

"How about the automobile?" asked the receiver.

Loaned $120,000 Bonds.

"Oh," replied Buchnan carelessly, "I had an automobile and Hunt liked it and I said to him: 'Just take it along.'"

Lewis Ginter Young, the youngest member of the firm, was trying to explain about $120,000 worth of American Tobacco bonds which his mother lent Brown the day of the failure of the firm. Young's answers did not satisfy Attorney Hays, the receivers' counsel, and Hays remarked that he thought the witness was prevaricating.

Edward Lauterbach, counsel for the defence, didn't like Hays's words, and said:

"I object to this sort of comment. The prisoner——"

Then he stopped in some confusion in having alluded to his client in such tactless manner, while every one in the room laughed, except the four defendants present.

KERN TRIES TO HUSH LOSS OF BIG FOUR PASS

CONNORSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 29.—Did or did not John W. Kern, Democratic nominee for the Vice-Presidency, who on the stump has been urging the defeat of his Republican opponent, James Schoolcraft Sherman, on the plea that Sherman is a friend of the corporations, lose an annual pass over the Big Four Railroad at the free fair here recently?

Mr. Kern says that he did have a Big Four pass, sent to him to go to Winchester, Ind., to defend the railroad in a damage suit. He added that he had not had occasion to use it and did not know if it had been lost. Also, he said he did not know it was an annual pass, if it was.

"When Mr. Kern was here at the Free Fair," said E. W. Tatman, editor of the Daily News here, to-day, "he lost a notebook, and spoke of his loss to several men. A reporter was sent out and the book was found. It was of red leather, with Mr. Kern's name in gilt, and in it was a pass issued by the Big Four Railroad Company to John W. Kern, good until December 31, 1908."

A railroad officer, asked how Mr. Kern had a pass when the Federal law was so stringent on the subject, said Mr. Kern was the company's regularly employed attorney, and therefore could be given transportation.

It was an interesting discovery that Mr. Kern, making denunciatory speeches against aggregate corporate wealth, should be the paid attorney of one of the biggest railway corporations in the world. If he is not now such an employe, then the railway has violated the law by permitting him to ride free over its lines.

HARRIMAN IN BOSTON TO HAVE BACK TREATED

E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, is having a skilled specialist in Boston treat him for stiffness of the back.

He came to Boston Sunday in one of his own special trains, hired an automobile at the South Station and went directly to the office of Dr. R. W. Lovett at No. 234 Marlboro street.

Dr. Lovett's specialty is orthopedic surgery, a branch of plastic surgery, and relates to the correcting or preventing deformity of any part of the body.

Mr. Harriman has a stiff back, and while it is not dangerous, it is by no means comfortable for the great capitalist to be bothered as he has been during the past few months.

Sunday's visit to Dr. Lovett was by no means Mr. Harriman's first. He has slid quietly into Boston by means of his special train and an automobile a number of times previous to this. Each time he has visited the Back Bay orthopedic surgeon.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Frederick Warren Stewart of this city, son of Colonel F. G. Stewart, who has been assigned to the ungarrisoned post at Fort Grant, Ariz., is one of the 91 persons appointed from civil life as second lieutenants in the army. Young Stewart will join the field artillery.

RUSHING 85 MILES AN HOUR TO REACH WIFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—On the fastest long-distance train that ever travelled over an American railroad, Frederic Thompson is speeding to Chicago to the sick bed of his wife, Mabel Taliaferro.

At 1 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Thompson was notified of the fact that Miss Taliaferro was so ill that she could not appear at the Illinois theatre in the Sunday night performance of "Polly of the Circus." He was in Philadelphia, where for the last week he has been rehearsing the Victor Herbert-Harry B. Smith musical comedy, "Little Nemo."

He immediately caught the first train to New York, and over the telephone made arrangements with Vice-President Charles F. Daly of the New York Central to make a record dash to Chicago in sixteen hours, two hours less than the time of the Twentieth Century Limited.

On this short notice it was impossible to make up a special train in this city, so Mr. Thompson was forced to take the Empire State express as far as Buffalo. There he was met by a special train consisting of one Pullman car and the fastest passenger engine on the Lake Shore railroad. By direct orders from the officials of the railroad the track was cleared and instructions were given to the engineer to make the best possible speed to Chicago.

"Never in the history of railroading," said Vice-President Daly, "has a train been shot over the rails at such terrific speed as is being made by Mr. Thompson's special. From Buffalo to Chicago Mr. Thompson will travel at an average rate of eighty-five miles. I have given instructions to have bulletins of Mrs. Thompson's condition telephoned from Chicago to my office hourly, and whenever Mr. Thompson's train makes a stop he will be apprised of the exact state of her health."

MACHINE CHIEFS BACK FROTHINGHAM TO WIN

LUCE FOLLOWING TO BE SWUNG AGAINST COLE IN CONVENTION.

That the Republican State machine is making every effort to have Frothingham named for Lieutenant-Governor in the Symphony Hall convention on Saturday was the frank admission to-day of almost everybody connected with the three-cornered contest. At the present hour, it was said, Robert Luce of Somerville, who will have at least 300 votes in the convention, could remove the last doubt from the minds of the Frothingham men. Luce could deliver his support to Frothingham. It is not believed that he could deliver much of it to Cole, whom the temperance folk have attacked because of his selection of material for the Committee on Liquor Laws.

A fine young story came down to-day from Springfield, via the Springfield Union of that city, proposing Colonel A. H. Goetting as a splendid man to dark horse. The union described how the convention might be stampeded for Goetting and outlined a "spoke of a mysterious plan" to that end.

Folks who took the pains to inquire at the rooms of the Republican State committee learned that Colonel Goetting is a music publisher in Springfield. Once upon a time, the historians said, the Senators let Colonel Goetting play at being chairman of the Republican State committee for a time. Colonel Goetting got the idea at that time that he was really running the boat, and under that impression was a candidate for the Lieutenant-Governorship nomination at the very moment when the machine planned to hand it to Eben S. Draper.

Mr. Draper won, and Goetting hadn't been heard from again until to-day.

The best judgment of everybody who was on the job to-day was that former Speaker Louis A. Frothingham will be named for Lieutenant-Governor on Saturday on the first or second ballot. The combination will be Frothingham-Luce rather than Cole-Luce.

It is John N. Cole, boss of the Cole machine, against Frothingham, protege of the State machine. The initials of the gent in charge of the road roller are Henry Cabot Lodge.

WRIGHT MAKES NEW RECORDS

LE MANS, Sept. 29.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, continues to make record flights and during the last twenty-four hours has added two new marks to his list in three trials. On the first flight he was unaccompanied and remained in the air 1 hour 7 minutes 11 4-5 seconds, covering about thirty miles.

On the second flight he was accompanied by the aeroplanist Tissandier, and he succeeded in beating the record for a flight with a passenger by remaining up 11 minutes 35 2-5 seconds.

His previous flight with a passenger was made last Friday, when he remained in the air 9 minutes 13 1-5 seconds at a height of fifty feet.

Count de Lambert was his passenger on the third trip, when he covered about three and one-half miles in 6 minutes 15 seconds.

NOTABLES ON WINIFREDIAN

The Leyland liner Winifredian arrived to-day from Liverpool with ninety-seven saloon passengers aboard, most of whom are residents of Greater Boston. Among them were Professor C. R. Lanman of Harvard, who has been attending international conventions of scholars at Berlin and Copenhagen and visiting Professor Grenfell at Oxford. Other passengers were Edgar Crocker, a State street broker; Richard F. Whitney and family of Norwood, who were welcomed at the pier by Mr. B. F. Cheney and wife, who was known on the stage as Julia Arthur; L. H. Plympton, home from a tour of the Balkan states; and Mrs. Charles Talbot, widow of the late British consul. She lives in Brookline.

LODGE JOINS STUMP FORCE

The first big opening gun of the Republican State campaign after the State convention of Saturday next, will be the rally on the evening of October 6, at the city auditorium in Melrose. The speakers will be Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Lieutenant-Governor Eben S. Draper, Louis A. Frothingham, Chairman George H. Doty of the State Committee and E. Mark Sullivan, assistant United States District Attorney.

HOUSE ROBBED, MRS. PIERCE IS SUED FOR LOSS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Astonishing depredations by burglars have resulted in Mrs. "Tom" Pierce, society woman and prominent in Boston and on Long Island as a cross-country rider, being sued by Patrick Jones for $500.

Mr. Jones has a ranch in Texas upon which he spends his Winters. Most of his Summers are spent at Hempstead. Mrs. Pierce leased the Jones cottage, furnished. She closed it before her lease was out and went to Virginia.

Burglars got in and ransacked the place. They took everything portable, including the kitchen stove. The place was a wreck. All Mr. Jones and his family had to keep house with when he arrived this year could have been put in a small bedroom. There was not a bed nor a carpet left.

Mrs. Pierce said it was not her fault. Mr. Jones's bill for new furniture was $1,000. He came to the conclusion that as he had bought new furniture, he would sue for only half this sum. Mrs. Pierce, however, was in Massachusetts. Last week she came into the State to attend the Mineola Horse Show and the papers in the suit were served.

The burglars who looted the place were caught and sent to prison, but this did not result in the recovery of the furniture.

FRANKLIN UNION CLASSES START

The Franklin Union opened its doors last evening for school work and will continue until March 25. Everyone of the eight classes registered a full quota, in all about 300 pupils.

The season has been divided into two terms, the first ending on December 23 and the second term beginning on January 4. Classes will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30, except on legal holidays and the Wednesday before Thanksgiving day.

The school administration is in charge of Walter B. Russell, director.

Bryan, Chameleon Candidate, Says New Party Leader

HISGEN DECLARES DEMOCRATIC STANDARD-BEARER IS EXPERT "BACK-SCRATCHER."

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 29.—Asserting that Bryan is pressing down upon the brow of the people "a crown of thorns" and that he is sacrificing them upon the "golden cross" of his own ambition, Thomas L. Hisgen, Independence party candidate for President, made a stirring address to a large audience last night at Salt Palace.

He pictured Bryan as a chameleon candidate, who changed his colors to accommodate his surroundings and desires.

"Bryan turned white as a silver advocate, yellow as the supporter of a gold bug, and now he is the color of Standard Oil," said the famous Oil Trust fighter.

Hisgen Shows His Reason.

Mr. Hisgen in the course of his address said:

"Men who want a change in the conditions that prevail in this country will throw away their votes if they cast them for either of the candidates of the old parties. That seems a strong assertion to make, but I believe it to be absolutely true and I'll give you my reasons.

"We formed the Independence party because it was found that the two old parties had fallen under the domination of the same power—of the trusts. Neither of the old parties stands for the people. The Republican party never made much pretense of doing so, but the Democratic party has lived because of the claim.

To Restore Government to People.

"The rights of the people has always been the slogan of the followers of Jefferson and of Tilden. If the Democratic party leaders had remained true to the people, if they had not played politics for their own private ends, then there would not have been a field for a new party such as we have formed, and such a party would not be in existence. The Independence party proposes to do what the Democratic party was meant to do and what it should have done long ago—restore the government to the people.

"Since our campaign began it will be acknowledged that we have stirred up a political hornet's nest, and some of the prominent members of both parties, who had come to believe that they were immune, have been pretty badly stung.

Accused Men Surrendered.

"William Randolph Hearst, the founder of the Independence party, showed that Senator Foraker was a tool of the Standard Oil Trust, and the Senator has thrown up his hands and surrendered. Governor Haskell, the treasurer of the National Democratic Committee, and one of Mr. Bryan's closest friends, was charged with being a friend of the Standard Oil Trust, and Mr. Haskell gave up without a struggle. Thus, in the short time the Independence party has been in the national fight it has uncovered more crookedness than either of the old parties ever has.

"That is the kind of party we ask you to support. We are proud to have a man like Mr. Hearst behind this party, because everybody who knows anything about people and things in the United States knows that no trust can buy him or bully him.

"Vote for Taft and you vote for the party of Foraker, of the Standard Oil Trust; Dupont, of the Powder Trust; Sherman, of the Ice Trust; for the party that made the trusts and the party that is maintained by the trusts.

"Vote for Taft and you vote for a banking system that was responsible for the panic through which the country has passed; a banking system that allows favored men to monopolize the money of the country, control its volume and fleece the people by charging them exorbitant rates of interest.

"If you want that sort of government you should vote for Taft.

Bryan as a Chameleon.

"But I am bound to say that you would get the same thing if you voted for Bryan. Did you ever see a chameleon? It is a sort of lizard which changes its color in accordance with its surroundings. Bryan is the champion chameleon candidate of the country.

"He turned white in 1896 and 1900 and stood for silver. He switched to yellow in 1904, and stood for Parker, the Gold Bug; now he is an oily complexion to correspond to the Rockefeller hue.

"The Ethiopian can not change his skin nor the leopard his spots, but Bryan is neither an Ethiopian nor a leopard. The great American people are now engaged in the greatest guessing contest of the age. They are trying to figure out what color Bryan will turn next.

"My friends, we are not only a destructive, but a constructive party. We not only show why the leaders of the old parties are wrong and should be destroyed, but we propose measures by which the people can rule. Bryan used to stand for these things before he pressed down upon the brow of the people a crown of thorns and sacrificed them upon the golden crown of his ambition.

Bryan a "Back-Scratcher."

"Bryan has now become an adept in the political game of 'back scratching.' He got into it in 1904 when he surrendered to the Parker gold bugs. You scratch our back this time, they told him, and we'll scratch yours in 1908. And Bryan did it and now the Parker gang are scratching his back.

"Bryan went a little farther in the political game when he called in Mr. Hearst in New York and made the proposition that if Hearst scratched his back this year he would perform the same service for him in 1912. But Hearst told him that his bacg wasn't itchy, and that he did not like the new game anyhow.

"Read our platform and vote to build up a party that can't be bought or bullied. If you do this you will be doing more for the good of your country than if you vote for either of the candidates of the old parties."

TAFT FULL OF FIGHT, ATTACKS BRYAN AS POLITICAL "QUACK"

FARGO, N. D., Sept. 29.—William H. Taft was accompanied by a snowstorm on his tour here to-day and last night, but was given one of the biggest receptions of the campaign at a monster barbecue here. His speeches were short, but full of ginger and in criticism of Mr. Bryan, whom he denominated a physician with nostrums and panaceas for the cure of every organic disease.

REPORT REPEATED THAT ROOSEVELT IS TO TAKE STUMP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The report was again circulated last night that President Roosevelt is to take the stump for Taft.

It is said that the favorable reception of his letter to Bryan has led him to a decision. The same report was circulated [illegible] time ago, but vigorously denied at the [illegible].

The President, it is said now, believes that a few speeches from him will remove the present doubtful stage of the campaign and clinch it for Taft.

"Nothing is decided so far. "I can say nothing about it.

RIDDER WANTS $5.000 EACH FROM 500 DEMOCRATS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Herman Ridder, treasurer of the national Democratic committee, has issued a call for 500 men to contribute $5,000 each to the Democratic campaign fund.

He says he thinks there are that many Democrats in the country who will be willing to contribute that amount each, and "we are going to give them a chance to do so."

BINGHAM IS STILL FIRM IN DECLINING THE NOMINATION

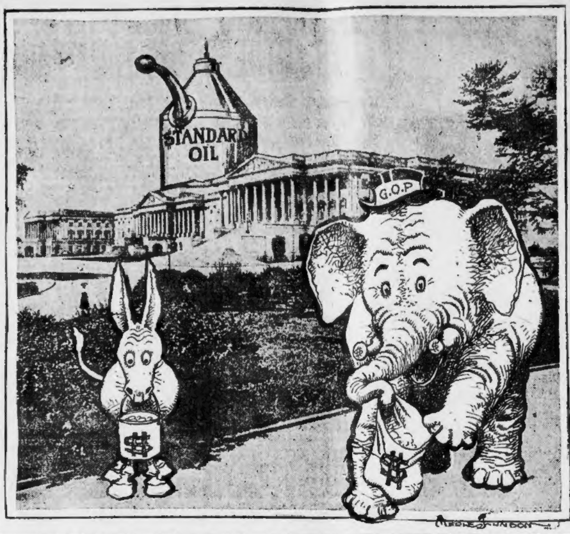
CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 29.—Supreme Court Justice George H. Bingham still declines every offer of aid and rejects every inducement to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor.

He has refused to consider the offer of Josiah Carpenter, the Manchester millionaire and former police commissioner, to pay the legitimate expenses of his campaign and passively allow the State to elect him.

He declined to listen to Judge James W. Remick of Concord, his stanch personal friend, despite the assurances of Judge Remick that he brings Republican support from all parts of the State.

He will not consider the aid of Taft-Bingham clubs that are ready to announce themselves in different parts of the State as soon as he says he will be a candidate.

OUR GOVERNMENT



MRS. SILSBY TO PLEAD ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING

TO CLAIM REVOLVER WAS DISCHARGED WHILE SHE AND CHILDS WERE STRUGGLING.

"Accidental shooting" will be the defence set up for Mrs. Rose A. Silsby of Waltham, who is charged with the murder of Clinton E. Childs of Boston, according to the latest information obtainable on the case.

It is claimed that the first reports of the death of Childs were erroneous and that Mrs. Silsby did not shoot him while he was trying to force his way into her daughter Frances's room, but that the weapon was accidentally discharged while Mrs. Silsby and Childs were struggling for its possession on the fatal night.

While Mrs. Silsby's counsel, City Solicitor Thomas F. Carey of Waltham, is naturally not disclosing all his plans for defending his fair client before the trial jury, yet it can be said that the "accident" theory is now being developed, with a view to its presentment in due time.

According to this new light on the case, Mrs. Silsby started for the revolver to deter Childs from his effort to go into the daughter's chamber. Mrs. Silsby, in a frenzy of fear for her daughter, thought of the big Colt's revolver which her husband, Freight Conductor Eben Silsby, had happened to leave at home that particular night. She started for the revolver. So did Childs. A struggle ensued over the weapon. In the encounter the revolver was discharegd and Childs was fatally wounded.

It was by merest chance, it seems, that the revolver was in the house at all. Mr. Silsby carried the weapon on his night runs on the Fitchburg division freights on account of the tramps along the track and the recent prevalence of crime in general. The night of the shooting, last Wednesday, he meant to take the revolver with him as usual and had even laid it on a table upstairs, ready to pick up when he went out. But he forgot it. Mr. Silsby, who is heartbroken over the wreck of his home, bemoans strongly his neglect to take the revolver with him that night.

"If I had only taken the gun along with me that night," he says, "this never would have happened."

Mrs. Silsby is in such a state of collapse in her cell on "Murderers' row" in East Cambridge jail that grave fear is felt for her.

Sheriff Fairbairn says:

"She is naturally a high-strung, nervous woman, and the memory of the shooting and the subsequent confinement in jail are telling on her."

RICH WOMAN DROPS DEAD AT BURGLAR SCARE

Miss Emily N. Niles of No. 303 Mystic street, Arlington, and Beacon street, Boston, is dead to-day as the result of a burglar scare at her Summer home in Arlington last night. Alarmed at the screams of her maid, a German girl, named Philie, that there was a strange woman in the house, Miss Niles jumped from her seat at a table in the dining room where she was sitting with her two sisters and ran up stairs to the telephone. Just as she reached the instrument she fell backward into the arms of the German maid. She sank to the floor as her sisters who had followed her reached her. Miss Niles never recovered consciousness and Dr. E. D. Stickney declared death was due to heart disease caused by sudden fright.

Miss Niles died a few minutes after she had instructed the German girl to carry the family silverware to the chest where it is generalyy kept. This chest is in a closet in which are hung a number of silken dresses and skirts. A few minutes after the maid went to the closet Miss Niles and her sister heard her screaming and crying that there was a strange woman in the house. She ran into her room where the Niles sisters were and motioned widely toward the closet.

After Miss Niles was dead the police were notified and Patrolman Thomas F. Priest was sent to investigate. He found that every window and door was fastened and that it did not appear that any stranger had been near the house.

Miss Niles was one of the best-known residents of Arlington, making her Summer residence on Mystic street. The family is classed as one of the wealthiest here and they are large property owners in Boston, living on Beacon street. The two sisters are prostrated over the sad occurrence.

DOUGLAS CO. GETS INTEREST IN NASHUA SHOP

BROCKTON, Sept. 29.—The W. L. Douglas Shoe Company of this city, it became known to-day, is negotiating with the shoe manufacturing firm of W. D. Brackett & Co. of Nashua, N. H., for an interest in the business of the Nashua company, with an idea of transferring part of the Douglas plant in Brockton to the New Hampshire city.

Up to the present time, according to the representatives of the W. L. Douglas Company, nothing has been decided definitely, and the officials of the company were unable to state to-day how many operatives would be employed at Nashua in the event of the Douglas company beginning operations there.

At the present time there is some difference of opinion between the Douglas company and the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union over the terms of a contract, the union claiming that the contract has been invalidated by the company. This claim is to be arbitrated.

Former Governor Douglas, when asked if a part of the Douglas plant was to be transferred to Nashua, said:

"The fact is, we have been making a portion of our shoes there for a year or more. We have acquired an interest there now. I don't know how many shoes we shall make there. That is all there is to it."

MAN WANTED HERE DIES IN 'FRISCO

Chief Inspector Watts has received word that Alexander Goldman, wanted in connection with the big safe robbery of the wholesale liquor store of Flashman Bros., Boston, last Christmas eve, had died in San Francisco, where he was awaiting trial on a burglary charge.

An Electric Story of an Enterprising Merchant

THE odd thing seizes our attention. Good oddity—so to speak—is good advertising.

One merchant has told us that he finds it pays to keep the lights in an entrance show case burning all day. He is fond of telling how a friendly brother retailer came in one morning and said:

"Say, you have made a mistake. As I passed I noticed your show case. You have forgotten and left all the electric lights burning. It looks odd."

"That's why I did it," smiled the merchant. He is fond of adding that there is now at least one new day-light load for us in the show case line on an adjoining street.

An electric sign turned on cloudy days has a cheerful and eye-catching effect.

Another point is that the number of electric signs in Greater Boston has grown faster than elsewhere.

Now they are growing faster than ever before because of the cheaper prices for electricity.

Get yours.

We can tell how—the prices—and the latest things in signs.

MELLEN CALLS FOR BOOST IN TICKET RATES

The price of transportation on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad has got to be increased, says President Charles Sanger Mellen, "unless."

Mellen's "unless" is "unless labor and those controlling the price of materials share the necessary liquidation."

The intimation of a coming boost in freight rates and the price of railroad tickets, if New Haven employes will not submit to a cut down, comes in the annual report of the New Haven board of directors for the year ending on June 30 last. The report, signed by Mr. Mellen, shows that the New Haven earned a 6 per cent. dividend and paid 8 per cent., producing a deficit of $2,516,692, as compared with a surplus over the 8 per cent. dividend last year of $1,988,053.

Although the report purports to be a "general statement of the affairs" of the New Haven for the year, it is absolutely silent on the disastrous merger fight in the Massachusetts Legislature of 1908 and equally mum concerning subsequent happenings before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

Operating revenues for the year amounted to $53,050,147, as compared with $55,601,936 in the previous fiscal year. Operating expenses $38,213,557, compared with $37,850,081. The net operating revenue was $14,836,589, as compared with $17,751,854 in the previous year. After the payment of all fixed charges and adding income from other sources, the net income applicable to dividends was $5,266,569, as compared with $8,893,041 the previous year.

The company has in its treasury, cash on hand and in banks, $23,153,279. The debt increased during the year $37,541,870, due chiefly to the issue of 6 per cent. convertible debentures. The stock of the company outstanding in the hands of the public is $97,895,700, and there is stock at par in the treasury to the amount of $23,082,400.

THINK HARVARD MAN IS DROWNED

Robert Lincoln Clark, who recently completed his first year in the Harvard Law School, and who lives in New York, is believed to have been drowned in Lake Geneva, Switzerland. Saturday he went to St. Gingolph and took a boat ride with the intention of swimming in the historic lake. The boat with his clothes drifted ashore at Vevey, and although search has been made for the body no trace can be found.

RIDDER WILL 'EXPLAIN' TO UNION LABOR

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Herman Ridder, successor to Haskell as treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, did not grant the demand of the Central Federated Union of New York when called upon by the committee yesterday. Instead, Mr. Ridder declared that he would appear before the Central Federated Union at its meeting next Sunday to "discuss publicly all they desire to know."

In the face of his letter to the Central Federated Union, in which he told that body to "mind its own business," Mr. Ridder issued a statement yesterday, declaring that he is now a friend to union labor and has been for years.

This statement seems in remarkable contrast to an order issued by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, through whom Mr. Ridder will now be expected to obtain the contributions of union workingmen to the Democratic campaign fund.

In that order Mr. Gompers endorsed a strike of the German Typographia No. 7 against the New York Staats Zeitung when Mr. Ridder was its business manager and co-partner with Oswald Ottendorfer, and urged a boycott of the newspaper by union readers because Ridder had refused to unionize the plant.

Mr. Ridder was found at the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee in the Hoffman House yesterday after his reception of the union committee. He was in a jovial mood. This is the way he referred to the demands from the federated union:

"I have met the committee from the Central Federated Union," he said, "and discussed briefly the request for an interview relative to the reinstatement of the former employe of my paper, Emil Sander. I see that I am under fire as treasurer of the campaign for the Democratic party. I always fight in the open. I authorize you to print this statement:

"I was informed at the time and still believe it to be a fact that the dispute over work on the building of a contemporary morning newspaper was the result of a quarrel or rivalry between two unions."

PROF. LYON BACK FROM PALESTINE

Professor David G. Lyon of Harvard, the famous archaeologist, returned yesterday from six months of research in Palestine. Jacob Schiff, the well-known banker of New York, is said to have financed the expedition, having contributed $50,000 for the purpose. Professor Lyon declined to tell what he had accomplished.

LOADED WITH GEMS; TELLS OF LUCKY FINDS

One Medric Vigeant, So-called, Gives Providence an Idea of Bar Harbor High Life.

REALLY 'TIS QUITE A STORY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 29.—A remarkably close-shaven, dapper-looking man of twenty-eight, calling himself Medric Vigeant, stepped into one of the numerous Providence pawnshops to-day, produced a nobby breastpin embellished by a few sparklers, remarked that he was short of ready cash, wished to use the long distance telephone and send a package by express, and borrowed $40 on the trinket.

The pawnbroker kept him talking and sent for the police. Inspectors Haran and Ahearn made the arrest.

At headquarters they found on Mr. Vigeant other valuables to the extent of about $700. There was a three-stone diamond ring worth $275, a scarf pin set with an opal and fourteen diamonds, $125; a pin with sixteen small stones, $50; an eight-point star with a ruby and twenty-four pearls, $200, and several smaller pieces.

"This is a high-handed outrage," Vigeant said, referring to being pinched, "and I shall make you people sweat for it. The idea! All this jewelry was the property of my wife, who sent me out to raise a little money."

The prisoner gave the address of his wife in Boston. Boston detectives went to the house. They found Vigeant's sister-in-law.

"My sister," she said, "hasn't got any jewelry and never had any."

Then Mr. Vigeant told another story.

"I have been employed at Bar Harbor by Mrs. George Lee Thompson of Philadelphia, completing my labors when Mrs. Thompson left on Sept. 21 for the Homestead Hotel at Hot Springs, Virginia. Formerly I worked for the McCormicks. It was after Mrs. Thompson's departure that I found most of these things on the walk in front of the house, tied in a handkerchief.

"The scarf-pin, however, I picked up under a bureau; the bar pin, as a matter of fact, was presented to me by the cook."

The detectives were unable to say one single word in reply. They just looked at Vigeant and looked again and again. Then they bowed their heads and left the cell.

HUNT SLAYER OF WOMAN IN MAINE TRAGEDY

FARMINGTON, Me., Sept. 29.—Bullet holes found in the walls of the kitchen where the dead body of Mrs. Verna L. Knapp of Phillips was found prove, according to the police, that the woman was murdered and that her assassin lay in wait for her. The suicide story, the officials declare, has been completely disproved.

To-day the police of Phillips discovered what they believe to be a most important clew, and they dispatched officers early on an important mission. The exhuming of the body and the autopsy held on it are believed to have furnished startling evidence.

While the officials investigating the case are uncommunicative, it is known that they expect to make startling revelations within a short time now. It is believed that the strange deah of the pretty mother will soon be explained.

The case has proved one of the most baffling in the criminal history of New England. The woman, it was at first believed, had shot herself and the suicide verdict was generally accepted. Several days after the body was removed, however, a number of bullet holes were found in the walls of the kitchen where the woman's body was found.

PLEDGE $12,500 IN ERIN'S CAUSE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—Philadelphia last night, at the greatest Irish meeting ever held here, in the Academy of Music, welcomed the envoys from Ireland, John E. Redmond, M. P., Joseph Devlin, M. P., and John Fitzgibbon, chairman of the Roscommon County Council, and over-subscribed in half an hour the pledge of $12,500, made by the delegates from this city at the Faneuil Hall convention in Boston last Wednesday.

BUSHNELL TO CARRY BANNER OF NEW PARTY

Prominent Hibernian and Labor Man Named for Senator in Second Bristol

AT FALL RIVER CONVENTION

FALL RIVER, Sept. 29.—Michael Bushnell of this city, former president Division 14, A. O. H., one of the leaders in the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks and regimental adjutant of the Second Regiment Hibernian Rifles, was last night nominated for Senator in the Second Bristol District at the senatorial convention of the Independence party.

The convention was called to order by Joseph G. Jackson. John E. Dempsey was elected chairman and E. J. Cantwell secretary. Mr. Bushell was nominated by Joseph G. Jackson and the nomination was seconded by Mr. Cantwell. Mr. Bushnell accepted the nomination in a brief speech.

At the representative convention held last night Jacob Feldelberg was nominated for representative to the General Court from the Ninth Boston District, Peter Quinn from the Eleventh and Joseph G. Jackson from the Tenth.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the City Committee held here last night plans for the Congressional convention, to be held next week, were discussed. The delegation from this city will go pledged to the candidacy of Dr. Charles W. Copeland. From the indications last night it is believed that he will receive the congressional nomination. Enthusiastic speeches were delivered by Robert Marsden, Edward J. Cantwell and Joseph G. Jackson.

Mr. Jackson called on the members of the city committee to unite and urge the delegation from Fall River to the State convention next Saturday, to insist that Mr. John E. Dempsey be given a place on the State ticket. Mr. Jackson declared that Mr. Dempsey had earned the honor as one of the hardest workers for the Independence party and one of the original members of the Independence League.

JAY URGES SAVINGS FUNDS BE GUARDED

DENVER, Sept. 29.—Speaking before the American Bankers' Association, Pierre Jay, State banking commissioner of Massachusetts, argued for a clean segregation between the accounts of the savings department and those of the "commercial department, or bank proper." He expressed the opinion "that the inadequacy of the savings bank system in some of the States and the total lack of it in so many others has been the cause of the agitation for a postal savings bank."

DAVIS TRIES TO PROVE ALIBI IN RUSTIN CASE

Claims He Was Ill at Hotel When Physician Was Killed.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 29.—The taking of evidence in the preliminary hearing of Charles Richard Davis, charged with the murder of Dr. Frederick Rustin, has been concluded. Arguments of counsel began this morning.

Mrs. Rice spent several hours under cross-examination by Attorney Gurley for the defence, but nothing of importance other than what had already developed was brought out.

The defence called about a score of witnesses. Mr. Gurley sought to prove an alibi by showing that Davis was at his hotel when the shooting occurred.

Frank Graham testified that he lived at the Chatham Hotel and had a room near that of Davis. Shortly after 3 a. m., he said, he went to the retiring room and there found some person had been sick. All the evidence produced by the State showed that the shooting of Dr. Rustin occurred at 3:30 o'clock in the morning.

Twenty guests of the Chatham were put on the stand to prove that no person at the hotel other than Davis was sick that night. Davis had already testified to being sick, and Graham's testimony was introduced to show that Davis was at the hotel before the shooting at the Rustin home occurred.

Harry B. Zimmer, a member of the City Council, testified to having met Rustin down town as late as 1:30 in the morning of the night the doctor was shot. All other testimony introduced tended to show that Rustin started for his home with Davis about 11:30 and did not return down town.

BUTLER TO STAY ON MALDEN BOARD

WOMAN IS KILLED IN SIGHT OF THRONG

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—In the presence of a crowd of women shoppers waiting for an up-town train at the Fourteenth street station of the Sixth Avenue Elevated Railway, a well-dressed woman of twenty-six threw herself in front of a rapidly moving train and was so terribly injured that she died a few moments later.

"LIVES ENDANGERED BY MILK BUREAU'S LAXITY"

—DR. FRANK B. GALLIVAN.

Department Fails to Prosecute the Trust for Law-Breaking, Says Retired Chemist.

Dr. Frank B. Gallivan, who is a brother of Street Commissioner Gallivan, and who resigned the position of chemist for the milk bureau after three years of service, made a statement to the BOSTON AMERICAN regarding "impure milk" in Boston.

"The milk bureau is not properly conducted and milk corporations are not prosecuted as they should be when they violate health statutes and board of health ordinances," he said.

"When the milk bureau finds a sample of impure milk taken from a milk wagon the driver is the man taken into court and fined. Why don't they put the corporation into court? It is the real offender, for the drivers are only agents and must drive their teams in order to earn a living. I never knew of a milk corporation being put into court, and if they were the prevalence of impure milk would soon cease.

Danger Unrealized.

"For the first offence the fine is usually $10. The second offence calls for a fine of no less than $100, the third offence calls for a jail sentence. Corporations which have violated the law time and time again would have soon stopped impure milk distribution if prosecuted. They can get plenty of drivers.

"I would like to call attention to the ordinance or regulation concerning the bacteriological standard. The ordinance says that milk containing over 500,000 bacteria per cubic centimetre is impure and must not be sold. This law should be enforced. Scarlet fever, diphtheria or typhoid fever are caused by bacteriologically impure milk.

"In the latest published report of the Board of Health I did not find a single instance reported of a milk dealer, driver or storekeeper being prosecuted, because samples contained more bacteria than is allowed by law. Two hundred and forty cases were prosecuted where milk was not up to the standard, and seventeen cases where milk was of too high a temperature. Yet in the same report it is stated of 309 samples of milk taken from wagons 47.99 per cent. contained bacteria over the standard, and in 361 samples of milk taken from the stores 81.01 per cent. were also over the standard, yet it is not stated that one of these cases were prosecuted in court. This is the kind of milk which spreads disease. People in Boston do not realise their danger.

Trust Protected?

"During the three years of my service in the Milk Bureau there were not more than six cases of bacteriologically impure milk prosecuted by the board, and we handled about 10,000 samples a year.

"I claim that the conduct of the Milk Bureau is the cause of the Milk Trust.

"Let the milk corporations be punished, and we will soon have pure milk.

Disease Peril From Bacteria

"People of Boston do not realize their danger from bacteria in milk. Of 309 samples of milk taken from wagons, 47.99 per cent. contained disease bacteria above the prescribed standard of 500,000 the cubic centimetre. In 361 samples taken from stores 81.01 per cent. were above the standard.

"The report of the health board shows no prosecution of these cases."—From statement by Dr. Frank B. Gallivan.

"Who is to be blamed? Is it the Milk Inspector or the Board of Health to which he is responsible? Has anyone ever heard the report of the committee appointed by the Finance Commission to investigate the Board of Health, or the report of the physician appointed to investigate the recent epidemic of typhoid fever in Jamaica Plain? I have not, but I would like to very much.

"Dr. Durgin says that as far as he is aware the Milk Bureau is enforcing all the rules and regulations laid down for it."

UNCLE SLAYS YOUNG WIDOW IN JEALOUSY

Shoots Her Twice in Head While She Slept with Her Two Infant Boys.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Ella Roach, a pretty widow of twenty-six, was shot and instantly killed by her uncle, Robert F. Wood, to-day as she was lying in bed with her two small children in her apartments at No. 401 West Fifty-third street. Wood was insanely jealous of the widow. After killing her he made his escape.

Mrs. Roach lived with her sister and the latter's husband, Joseph McConney. Wood had been stopping in a spare room there during the past few weeks and had a key to the front door. He entered the place to-day before anyone was out of bed.

Mrs. McConney was awakened by the sound of what seemed like a bitter altercation between her sister and a man whose voice she recognized to be that of her uncle, Wood. As she was wondering how he happened to be in the house at that early hour she heard the sound of two shots.

As Mrs. McConney jumped out of bed and ran to the rear of the apartment where her sister's bedroom was, she heard the front door opened. She ran out into the hall and says she saw her uncle leaping down the stairs. He ran out into the street and disappeared.

When Mrs. McConney reached her sister's bedroom she found Bert, the four-year-old boy, dazed with fright, holding his two-year-old baby sister, Ellen, in his little arms over in one corner of the bed. Mrs. Roach was stretched out in bed, lifeless, with two bullet wounds in the head.

A policeman questioned Bert, the four-year-old boy, and he said:

"It was my Uncle Bobbie. He did it. He came into our room and shot mamma."

Detective headquarters was notified and a general alarm was sent out for Wood, the uncle. Mrs. McConney says that he had been very attentive to Mrs. Roach for some time and appeared to be very jealous.

FIND BODY OF MAN IN HARBOR

Floating in the water off Union Wharf, the body of an unknown man was found by the police of Station 8 this noon. It was immediately taken to the North Grove street morgue, where it was later viewed by Assistant Medical Examiner T. J. Leary.

The body is that of a man apparently about forty years of age, five feet eight inches in height and weighing about 180 pounds, with black hair and stubby moustach. The clothing consisted of a blue serge suit, black and white striped shirt and black lace shoes. There was no collar.

TAKE "L" FIGHT TO COMMISSION

The selectmen of Brookline have taken their controversy with the Boston Elevated Railway Company to the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, and in a petition filed with the board to-day the town asks that the railway company be required to pay the expense of constructing an island station and a shelter in Village square.

FINED $500 IN CONTRACT LABOR CASE

Fines of $500 were levied to-day in the United States District Court by Judge Dodge upon Mitchell Northrup of Greystone, R. I., and Henry Burnison of Methuen, Mass., who were convicted recently of bringing English mill hands into this country in violation of the contract labor laws. An appeal was taken from this fine on exceptions.

Joseph H. Campbell of Charlestown pleaded guilty to the charge of using the United States mail in a scheme to defraud. Campbell, it had been shown in court, was connected with the Bunker Hill Sale and Commission Stable and it was contended that the business done by that concern was in violation of the mail regulations. It was claimed that farmers in Maine were victimized by buying horses from the concern on representations made through the mail. Judge Dodge will announce the sentence later.

HAZED; MAY GO MAD.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—George Harnisch, nineteen years old, a freshman in Washington University, may lose his speech and possibly his reason from a severe hazing last night by sophomores of the university. He was bound, gagged and tied to a telephone pole and left there for eight hours.

TEDDY, JR., STARTS WORK IN MILL AT $5 PER WEEK

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., after lingering around his old haunts in Harvard, is to-day on his way to Thompsonville, Ct., where he is to don overalls and jumper and learn how to make carpets at the big factories of the Hartford Carpet Corporation. To-morrow, Kermit Roosevelt, Teddy's younger brother, enters Harvard as a Freshman. He occupies rooms in Claverly Hall, Mt. Auburn street, where Teddy lived in his first year.

Teddy, Jr., slipped away from Cambridge, just as he came without any fanfares, but he will not be able to escape the enthusiastic welcome which awaits him in Thompsonville, where his fellow factory employes have planned a great reception. The idea of a President's son toiling ten and one-half hours a day in a factory for $5 a week is so democratic that the young man is assured of the respect and esteem of the factory hands before he so much as sees them.

President Robert H. Perkins of the Hartford Carpet Corporation and Vice-President and General Manager Alvin H. Higgins are both personal friends of President Roosevelt. Perkins rowed in the Harvard crew when the President was a student there.

"It took the last boy we had here eight years to master all the processes of carpet weaving," said General Manager Higgins, "but I feel sure that young Mr. Roosevelt will not require so long as that."

Teddy, Jr., will be treated, in the mill, just the same as the other 3,200 hands. He must report for duty at 7 in the morning and work as hard as he can until noon. He will have his lunch and then start in again at 12:45, and the whistle won't blow until 6:15. This is the schedule every day except Sundays, holidays and Saturday afternoons.

The first thing that he'll have to do is to work in the raw wool department sorting the wool. He will have to don the overalls and jumper and do part of the work himself until he knows good wool from bad and how to sort it.

Each day he will put in some little time in the mill office, where he will have enough clerical work to do to make up for his manual labor, but there is no fun ahead for the President's eldest son for the next few years if he's in earnest and intends to learn carpet making from start to finish.

Teddy, Jr., will be paid $5 a week at the start. Mr. Higgins says he will be paid more just as soon as he deserves it and no sooner. He is to be given his father's "square deal," and he knows it, but the young man doesn't ask for more.

He is to live in a humble home, the "Little White House" near Mr. Higgins's home at No. 23 Pleasant street, and Mr. Higgins' housekeeper will be Teddy's.

His baggage is all here now and has been taken to his rooms. There are all the trunks, and besides this there are the guns and hunting paraphernalia. He will have a chance to range the woods after game Saturday afternoons.

Only Mr. Higgins knows what Teddy will have to do after he learns how to wash, bleach and spin wool after getting knowledge of just what sort of wool is required in carpet weaving. One thing is sure, he has enough cut out for him to keep him busy for several years to come.

BEERS PLEADS GUILTY; PAYS FINE OF $100

Albert M. Beers of No. 19 Saxon road, Newton, who since August 21 has been sought far and wide by the police of Boston on a charge of conducting a bucket shop at No. 24 Congress street, to-day appeared before Judge Bolster in the Municipal Criminal Court.

When arraigned Mr. Beers at first pleaded not guilty to the charge, but after a low-toned conversation with his attorney, F. H. Noyes, changed his plea to guilty. Judge Bolster imposed a fine of $100, which Beers promptly paid.

Beers had been sought for weeks by the police, who since August 21 have had a warrant for his arrest. Late yesterday afternoon he telephoned the police that he was in Boston and ready to surrender. Then he went to Station 2, where he gave himself up.

Every doctor knows that most people drink too little. On this account, their systems become clogged with waste.

There lies the main good of watering places. They induce the drinking of water.

That is one reason why the drinking of beer is good for you. It leads you to drink more liquid than you would drink without it. And that liquid is both a food and a tonic.

The sturdiest peoples of the earth drink the most of it.

But be sure that the beer is aged, so it will not cause biliousness. And be sure it is pure.

How Sue Earned a Living

She Proved Domestic Service Is a Desirable Field

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AFTER four months of absence in mountains, seashore or country, the Spinster Lady and her young friends were having a sort of reunion, as it were.

"Well, girls," said the hostess, as she presided over her pretty tea table, "what sort of a Summer have you all had? You all look so well and brown, and as though you had laid up a wondrous store of health for the coming Winter!"

One by one they related their Summer experiences. Margaret had been abroad; Julia had been at the sea; Sally had motored through the Northern States; Kitty had come back with a dreamy look on her face and a solitaire on her left hand.

Sue alone was silent, but there was a twinkle in her gray eyes that showed her Summer had not been without its interests.

"Well, Saucy Susan," said the Spinster Lady, when the others had finished, "and what have you been doing all Summer? Was it something naughty, that you keep so quiet about it?"

"No, indeed. Something so utterly commonplace that I doubt very much if it would interest any of you to hear about it."

"Of course it would interest us," cried the girls. "Go on! Tell us what you have been doing."

Susan Tells Her Secret

She looked around the circle and her eyes danced with fun; then: "I have been in domestic service," she cried.

"What?" rose in incredulous chorus.

"Just that, exactly." Then, seeing the look of amazement on all the faces, she went on:

"You know that mother lost a good deal of money last year, and so our usual Summer trip was out of the question. In fact, things were so serious that we decided we must close the house until we knew just where we stood.

"So mother went to spend the Summer with Aunt Mary, and Nell and I made up our minds to support ourselves through the Summer."

"Why didn't you come to me?" said the Spinster Lady, reproachfully.

"Because we did not want to be a burden on our friends," said the girl, with a loving squeeze of her friend's hand.

"Well, the next thing was what to do. No one wanted a companion, and, though we went to a fashionable school, there are painfully few ways in which Nell and I can earn a living. We don't know how to sew, teach, nor any of those things; but, as perhaps some of you know, I do know how to cook."

"You do, indeed," was the ready answer.

Tells How It Came About

"Well, one day we were feeling desperate, when suddenly the thought popped into my head 'Why not cook?' I told Nell, and after talking it over we went right down town and put an advertisement in the papers. It said: 'Situations wanted for the Summer by two young women as cook and waitress or housemaid.'

"Then we went home and waited. I wish you could have seen some of our answers. Finally we decided to answer one of them, and I went down to a little country place on Long Island. I found the dearest little green and white cottage. The lady of the house was a girl of about twenty-two, who did not know a thing about housekeeping, and she engaged us both after a very little questioning."

"And you really went there and cooked?"

"Yes, for four months; and Nell did the housemaid and waitress work."

Won Good Wages and a Friend

"Was it fun?"

"There was nothing romantic about it—no dashing young millionaire came to dinner and fell in love with the waitress or the cook; but we did our work well, and were paid good wages. The mistress realized the spirit in which we were doing the work, and treated us accordingly. I think we parted as real friends, and I hope to see something of her this Winter."

"Did you have your meals with them?"

"Certainly not! We did not want to, and I am sure they did not think of such a thing."

She paused, then looked around the circle with a smile. "Well, girls, are you shocked?"

"Shocked?" said the Spinster-Lady. "Of course not! I think it was a splendid idea, and I wish more girls would follow it.

"There are thousands of nice places right here in Boston where a girl might take a place and find a very happy home. For instance, take two sisters or friends. They could easily find a place where they would be the only servants, and they would be far better off there than cooped up in a tiny room in some third-rate boarding house.

"The day is coming when domestic service, properly undertaken and carried out, will be a popular line of woman's work."

Getting Papa's Consent

It Was Her First Dance—And She Was His Baby

"WELL, I should say not!"

"Oh, papa, please!"

Miriam's half tearful tone of pleading caused her father to look up from the paper he was reading.

"Friday night, and——"

"Who is managing this thing, did you say?"

"Why all the frat boys. They have a dance every——"

"Um, humh!" Barson ran his eye deliberately down the latest stock report as if it were the one item of interest in the world for him.

Miriam stirred uneasily.

"I—Fred Rich asked me. You know Fred, papa?"

"What! that little snub-nosed kid that runs a toy engine past here?"

"Why, papa! I think you're just too mean! Fred isn't snub-nosed, and he isn't a kid. He's seventeen. And his father has the loveliest motor car in this neighborhood!"

He Had Been Watching Things

"I don't doubt it. I noticed the real estate transfer when he sold his house and lot."

"But, papa, I do so want to go. All the other girls are going. Fred is coming this evening and I must give him his answer when he arrives."

Barson folded his paper impatiently.

"He shall have his answer, never fear. Tell little Freddie that your pa says no! Not on your life! Never! Do you understand?"

Barson turned to his desk with an air of finality that seemed to settle the question forever, so far as he was concerned.

For a moment Miriam gazed at her father's inexpressive back and then followed the traditions of her foremothers and wept softly and becomingly into the daintiest of lace handkerchiefs.

Barson wheeled around quickly.

"See here," he demanded almost savagely, "what's all this waterworks about, anyway?" Miriam stifled a half-developed sob. "Do you mean to say you're crying because I won't let you go to this little old kid's doings Friday? Why, child," and Barson's voice softened, "you know I'd do anything in the world for you, but I can't let my baby go out to parties yet. Maybe in ten years from now if some fine fellow——"

That Was Too Much for Papa

That was too much. Miriam's square of lace was fast losing its identity as an ornament by being debased to a practical use.

"I—I—I don't want"—Miriam's breath came in catchy sobs—"to be—an old maid-ee-hee-ee!"

(Item—First aid to the injured. Apply a small lace handkerchief gently and gracefully to one or both eyes until relief is obtained.)

"Old maid! Suffering Susan, but that's rich! Excuse me, baby, while I give you an imitation of a horse laugh!"

The swish of his daughter's skirts as she disappeared through the doorway was the only reply. A damp little wad of lace lay at Barson's feet. He picked it up and smoothed it gently across his knee. Thoughtfully he turned to his desk. Miriam's baby picture, which stood there, smiled as sweetly as ever on him. But somehow he couldn't get that other picture out of his mind. His little daughter's happiness was more to him than all else in life. Still, he had acted for the best. There was plenty of time yet for beaux. The nerve of young Rich! Putting such ideas into his baby's head!

His wife came into the room.

"Jane, what do you think?" he asked. "Baby wants to go to a dance with Fred Rich. Did you ever hear of anything so ridiculous?"

Finally, Mamma Took a Hand

Mrs. Barson took up her sewing and seated herself before replying.

"I don't see anything ridiculous about it. The poor child is broken-hearted, and I don't wonder!"

"Do you mean to say," Barson almost gasped, "that you want her to go?"

"She's nearly seventeen."

"That doesn't answer my question. Do you want her to go?"

"I don't say so, but it does seem too bad——"

"That's enough. I may as well face the fact that I have two babies in this house instead of one. That's what drives a man to——"

"I don't believe I care to hear any more of your complimentary speeches to-night," interrupted his wife as she swept from the room.

The clock struck 9, and still Barson sat gazing at the baby picture. Now and then he could hear Fred's hearty, unconcerned laugh of youth and Miriam's subdued accompaniment. After all, life had too few joys.

Impatiently he tore a leaf from his writing pad and hurriedly scrawled a few words on it with his pencil. This he pinned to the front cover of a magazine. At the head of the stairs he called:

"Miriam, put this magazine in the library, please?"

Then He Had to Use a Handkerchief

"Yes, sir," came Miriam's constrained reply, as the book fell at her feet.

This scrawl caught her eye: "I say YES. Tell that kid to get out of here before the clock strikes 10, or I'll——" Here the pencil had shot savagely north by northeast in a cyclonic whirl, which indicated intense barometric disturbance.

Miriam gave a little scream of delight and then bounded upstairs two steps at a time.

"Oh — you — dear — old — darling!" she breathed in his ear rapturously between punctuations.

Barson went back into his room. Slowly he pulled the top of his desk down, shutting out the sight of the baby picture.

"Say, you're a snivelling old idiot," he told himself, as he jammed his handkerchief into his pocket.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

MUST PRACTICE ECONOMY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man earning $17 a week and have a steady position. What I want to know is, do you think that two can live on it. And if so, how much do you think I would need to start housekeeping on? I intend to get married in January.

A. B. C.

YES, I think two could live on that sum very nicely; but you would have to be careful and think of the pennies. I cannot tell what you would need to start housekeeping on, as I do not know where you are going to live.

A MAN OF SENSE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man, twenty years old. Last Fall I met, and, I honestly believed, loved, a girl of eighteen. We went around together. Just before Christmas I received a letter from her announcing her engagement to another fellow, and saying she could not go out with me any more. I felt pretty bad. A little after New Year's I received another letter, saying she would like to see me again if I still thought the same of her. I called and we made up, I caring too much for her to demand explanation. Then, after a month or so, I was suddenly dropped again. I stifled my feelings and there has been a silence of eight months. Now, after all this time, I received a letter from her asking if I still think the same of her, signed, "Your old friend, etc."

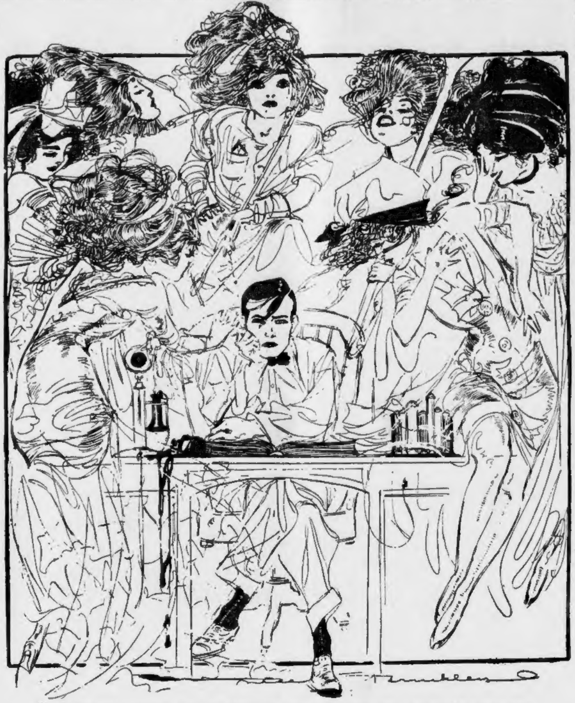
Of course, I do. I can't help that, but I can help from being a fool. Will you give me advice; should I reply under the circumsances?

A. F. V.

I REALLY think you would be foolish to go back to a girl who takes you up and drops you just when the wibm seizes her. If you take my advice you will write and tell her that you cannot be at her beck and call any longer. You seem to me like a very sensible young man, much too good to waste your time on such a fickle girl.

When Billy's Vacation Is Over

By NELL BRINKLEY



The Bettys rise around him like Summer mist, or the veils they tied under their chins.

AUTUMN has biked over the hills for the Billys, too. And vacation's only a faery tale a-goin' up in pipe smoke. Billy's shoulders are a rich mahogany, with centres or angry scars and skinned places; and he wants to put his nose up and yap—like the pup does when he plays "The Death of Siegfried" on the piano at twilight—because he sees things in the "faery tale a-goin' up in pipe smoke."

He digs his chin into his palm, with its canoe-paddle callouses, and his face is a wall for the lost Summer. The big city babbles many stories below like Doomsday, and his ink bottle lies on its side like a reckless kid and lets its ink make butterflies and gran-daddy long legs, and drip off the desk.

And the Bettys rise around him like Summer mist, or the veils they tied under their chins. Dusky, pale-faced ones, with their faces framed in plaited ruches like the heart of a flower in its petals. Bettyss, like whipped cream, in their fluffs, that danced in the moonlight with him on the club piazza, with the club lights hanging against the silver sky above the water like gems—emerald and sapphire and topaz.

One Betty beats her slender crop in her dogskins, and her hair is gold, and it brings back white hot noon days and the sting of road dust to his nostrils. She liked him as much as just barely the space between her forefinger and thumb when she could see the light through, she said.

And there's a slim, straight-legged Betty, with her red hair turbaned in a kerchief. The water used to kink it up around her face into a glorious mist, and her skin shone white under the film of water—it used to curl around her ankles—and her eyes were green in the sunlight, one time. And then there was the little thing with the black hair and long fingers. She didn't give a care to do the things the others did. She liked to swing in the hammock under the pines—but the way she curled up her mouth, and smiled, and touched her hair with her finger tips, and called him "Boy!"

"Buckle down! Grind, my boy! But God love 'em."

NELL BRINKLEY.

Expert Advice on Health and Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

FALLING HAIR

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will sulphur stop hair from falling. If it will please give directions how to use it.

IT is the sulphur in a tonic which feeds the hair roots and thus restores them to growing condition, keeping them from falling out. You do not use it alone.

GOOD SKIN FOOD

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you please give me the formula for a good skin food; one that does not contain any lanoline or anything injurious to the skin? Also tell me, please, how to make it, as I have had no experience in making creams of any kind?

IGNORANT.

MELT together two ounces oil of sweet almonds, two drams each of spermaceti and white wax and one dram oil of sweet orange. Warm two ounces of orange flower water and beat into the melted oils very slowly, drop by drop, beating briskly all the time. Take from the fire and keep up the beating until the cream is nearly cold, when turn it into jars. The secret of making smooth creams and those which do not separate is that all the oils and other liquids should be warm and that the beating must be kept up until all are thoroughly mixed.

PREMATURELY GRAY

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I am a young girl and my hair is rapidly turning gray. I suffer much from headaches. Do you think that that can be the cause of the premature grayness? Will you kindly suggest something that will stop the hair turning gray, and if possible that will restore that already turned?

THE headaches are undoubtedly the cause of the premature grayness? The best treatment for that condition is the application of electric treatments by one who knows her business. At the same time use the following tonic, which will keep the gray hairs from finally falling out: Mix three drams of resorcin, four drams oil of recini and one ounce tincture cantharides, with enough bay rum to make in all eight ounces. Scent with ten drops oil of rosemary. Massage well into the scalp a few drops every night for a week, then two or three times a week afterward.

FACE MUCH SUNBURNED

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I will be very much pleased if you will inform me of some cure for a sunburned face. I am in the sun about five or six hours each day and am always out in the fresh air. I have used peroxide freely for the past month. I see only a slight improvement. I have been in the habit of pouring it in my hand and damping my face with it about every hour.

A READER.

IF you see any improvement at all with the peroxide, keep it up two or three times a day. It would be hard to expect much when you are continually exposing the complexion to the sun. By far the best preventive of tan and sunburn is witch hazel. Dab it on every little while when you are in the sunlight and it will keep the sunburn down to a minimum. Don't use water to cleanse the face, but use a good cream instead.

CHINESE EYELASH STAIN

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you kindly give me the formula for the Chinese eyelash stain in your beauty column?

MISS B.

POWDER together one dram of gum arabic and half a dram of India ink. Triturate this with a small quantity of rosewater until you have a smooth, uniform liquid; then add more rosewater until you have used four ounces altogether. Apply with a tiny camel's hair brush and be careful not to get any of the liquid in the eyes.

IMIGINARY NECESSITIES.

WERE it not for the thousands of people who are slaves to imaginary necessities we might have avoided the panic of last October. It was these people indirectly who brought it on. It was these people who suffered most when it came. The laws of nature are iron in their retribution. The man who is earning $30 a week and spending $15 does not fear panics. Neither does the man who is earning $50,000 a year and spending $25,000. Sailors who do not know how to reef their sails would be at the mercy of squalls. People who do not know how to cut down their expenses are at the mercy of panics. A certain rich New Yorker, who retired from the Stock Exchange recently, started business forty years ago with three friends. When times were prosperous he could not afford to live as well as they did. When times were hard they had to borrow money of him in order to live at all.

A Woman's Definitions

By DOROTHY DIX

Cat—A woman who tells you how fat you have grown.

Bore—An individual who talks about himself, or herself, when you want to talk about yourself.

Cute—The bad things your children do.

Outrageous—The bad things other people's children do.

Tragedy—A new gown that doesn't fit.

Economy—Buying something you don't want because it is cheap.

Religion—Going on an emotional debauch.

Piety—Passing into a state where you pertually thank God you are so much better than your fellow creatures.

Reformer—One who tries to make everybody else quit doing the things she doesn't like to do.

Sympathy—Double action tear ducts. A sympathetic woman is one who can weep at will.

Philanthropy—Holding up merchants for contributions to church fairs, and sending tickets to your friends for amateur entertainments.

Culture—Belonging to a club to study what Browning thought he thought about something you don't want to know, anyway.

Gossip—The scandal other people repeat. Never the things you tell yourself.

Diplomacy—When you ask your husband for money for a new hat after dinner instead of before dinner.

Affinity—A man who tells you that you are not like other women; that your soul is like an untamed bird whose flights only he can follow, etc., etc.

Temperament—Temper.

In the Key of A-Flat

McBriers Were Game—But They'll Go Next Year

ONE day last Spring, Mrs. McBrier closed her account book and looked gravely at nothing for fully two minutes. Then she rose and, gathering up a lot of fascinating steamship folders and time-tables, dropped them into the waste basket.

Next, she went into the kitchen and tossed together her husband's favorite salad, after which she put on her pink jumper dress and tied a soft pink ribbon around her head, passing it under and over the curly brown locks until at last it met on the left side in a fetching rosette. The effect was good.

Last of all, she looked in the glass and determinedly added the finishing touch—an expression of absolute content.

When she heard her husband's latch key, instead of going to meet him she flew in the opposite direction, and he had to travel the length of the flat before he found her on the back porch, absorbed in contemplating the beauties of nature.

"Oh, Roger, is that you?" she exclaimed, guilelessly, as he came close. "Do see that sky! We get such a sweep of it up here—more than we ever saw on the second floor. And look at the tulips in the Wadsworths' back yard. Aren't we lucky to have the view of their garden without the work of making it? Roger, do we have to go away this Summer?"

Yearned for a Window Garden

"Do we have to?" he repeated wonderingly.

"Yes. You know everybody says New York's the best Summer resort, and I can't help dreaming of the possibilities of this porch if we could just settle down and stay with it. I'm crazy for a box garden all around the top of this railing and a hammock, and a table in the corner with continuous pitcher of iced lemonade, and magazines, and—don't it sound cozy?"

McBrier had been wondering how he was going to get the money together for the trip. "I told you last Summer we'd surely go this year," he said.

"Would you be very disappointed, dear?"

"I? Not for myself. I could get more out of a vacation right here than in any other place on earth. Why, to loaf over in the park through the day and come home to one of your good dinners, and spend an evening on this porch, fixed up the way you say—and then have my own tub and my own bed—well, lugging suitcases and making trains isn't in it. But I thought you——"

"I'm afraid I seem very changeable," she apologized, "but, really, this porch is as good as the deck of a steamer to me. What am I doing, though—trying to coax a man before he's had his dinner! Come straight into the house."

Then McBrier Went to Work

It was just after he finished his salad—the favorite kind—that McBrier graciously agreed to give up the Summer trip. As soon as dinner was over he went and interviewed the janitress about stray boards, and, before the evening had passed, the material for the boxes was stacked on the rear porch. Early next morning McBrier was annoying every family in the building by whistling and sawing and hammering. Bedtime that night saw the boxes done and nailed to the top of the railing.

When he came home the next evening the boxes had been stained green, so, directly after dinner, not to be outdone in energy by his wife, he sailed to the vacant lot and three times filled the janitor's wheelbarrow with dirt. They tied a pail to the clothesline and, because Mrs. McBrier couldn't decide whether it was more fun to stand below and load the pail or up above and pull it, they took turns, he laughing indulgently all the time at her enthusiasm.

Then came the seed sowing and watering the earth and watching for sprouts. The porch was furnished gorgeously, too, at a cost of exactly $3.89. When the hot days began the iced lemonade was always there and the latest magazines blossomed at the earliest date, even though the nasturtiums in the boxes did not.

Financially It Was a Life-Saver

"It would have been actually cruel to tear her away from her little nest," McBrier reflected, one night last week, as he lay in the hammock enjoying his pipe and watching his wife train spindling little sweet-pea vines up the cords they had stretched to the porch roof. The thought quieted his last qualm about the Summer trip, and he added, still silently, "One sure thing is that I don't know how I'd have met my payments in August if we had gone."

Then aloud, he remarked: "Isn't it time our nasturtiums blossomed, dear? Just look at those down in the Wadsworths' garden."

"Patience," she told him. "Ours will surprise you one of these days."

Forty-eight hours later, when McBrier stepped out on the porch after dinner, he exclaimed—for the box garden was aglow with blossoms.

"I said they'd surprise you," his wife cried, gleefully. "Isn't it lovely out here to-night? Oh, New York's the best Summer resort. Get comfortable in the hammock, dear, and I'll put the dishes away and read you a story."

Then He Found It All a Bluff

But McBrier, tempted by the profusion of blossoms, had picked one. "It didn't grow!" he cried, turning on her. "You stuck its stem in the ground!"

It was true. Lucie Wadsworth had invited her to come and gather nasturtiums whenever she liked, because they were wilting on the vines and this little scheme had occurred to her as brilliant.

"Now, why should you act so about a harmless little joke, Roger?" she pleaded with him later, as he lay in the hammock, solemn and silent.

"It isn't that," he answered. "It's because my eyes are opened. The whole thing was a bluff for my benefit. You knew we couldn't afford the trip, so you planned to stay at home and cook good dinners to keep me purring, and all your joy about this porch was put on to make me think you didn't want to go."

"Nonsense!" she came back at him. "How many times have I said that I think New Year's the best——"

"Game to the last!" he interrupted, admiringly. "But we will have that trip next year, if we go broke for it."

BARBERRY JAM

FREE the berries from stems and allow an equal weight of sugar. Put them in preserving kettle with just enough water to cover. Let them cook slowly, and when the juice is drawn out add the sugar and simmer forty minutes, stirring often. Turn into small jars and cover with paper. If the seeds are objectionable the jam should be strained before adding the sugar.

TO SEAL BOTTLES WITH WAX.

Melt eight ounces beeswax and four ounces of rosin in a tin pail, placed on back of range. Stir until well mixed. Put the corks in the bottles and press firmly, then invert the top of the bottle in the hot liquid.

WHITE STEAMED PUDDING

ONE cup sweet milk, one-half cup sugar, one egg, two teaspoons baking powder, butter size of walnut, two cups of flour. Steam one hour.

NINA MITCHEL.
No. 10 Kenwood street, Campello.

FINE SALAD DRESSING

IN a double boiler put one cup of vinegar and a piece of butter size of a walnut to scald. Mix together two dessert spoons of flour and one tablespoon of sugar. Beat three eggs until light and add to this. Then mix one tablespoon of mustard with water until smooth and dash of cayenne and put into the above. Next add one cup of milk and beat all with egg-beater. After this is ready pour into vinegar, stirring all the time. Let cook until it thickens. Mix in order given and it will be fine.

FRUIT CAKE

ONE cup of sugar, two-thirds cup of butter, scant, one cup of good sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one-third cup molasses, two eggs, two and one-half cups of flour, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg to taste, and cup of chopped raisins.

Lisbon, N. H.
MRS. I. E. JAMES.

PORK CAKE

ONE pound salt pork fat, one pound brown sugar, one and one-half cups dark molasses, four eggs, one cup hot water, one tablespoon cinnamon, one tablespoon cloves, one teaspoon allspice, a little nutmeg, two pounds flour, one full teaspoon saleratus, one pound currants, one pound seedless raisins, a little citron, one-half teaspoon salt. Chop the pork fine, put the hot water over it so all will melt. Then put the molasses, eggs and spices in. Take the raisins and currants and mix them with the flour and add to the rest. Dissolve the saleratus in a little water and mix all well. The dough must be rather stiff. Line a big tin with a greased paper and bake slowly for about three hours. When cold put a frosting over it. This cake will keep a long time.

Montgomery and Stone Really Do "Beat the Dutch" in "The Red Mill"

They literally do "beat the Dutch," do Fred Stone, "Dave" Montgomery, Ethel Johnson and the rest of the company in "The Red Mill," which is at the Colonial Theatre for its second Boston season.

Boston liked the Hollandaise musical play so well last year that it crowded the Colonial for the opening last night, and is buying seats cheerfully for all Boston performances.

Practically the original company is here, much to the pleasure of people who saw the show before and wanted to see the same thing again. There is one change in the group of principals. Miss Florence Quinn has the role of Gretchen van Borkem, daughter of the burgomaster. She is a petite actress, with a full round voice that seems almost too big for her diminutive frame.

Last night's audience laughed till its multiple sides ached at the antics of Montgomery and Stone as "Kid" Conner and "Con" Kidder. One or the other is always doing something ridiculous, and when neither one is funny then both are funny together, so to speak.

The bright book by Henry Blossom and the high musical plane set by Victor Herbert keep "The Red Mill" out of the run of ordinary musical productions, and the principals are fully adequate to do justice to the work laid out for them.

There seldom is a show in town where there is so much "straight" and eccentric dancing that never wearies. Miss Johnson trips lightly as a feather, for all that she is of good substantial build. The absurdities of speech, action and manner of Montgomery and Stone are rich, and show that snappy "business" may be kept up on the stage without being coarse or silly. At the same time there are mighty few comedians who could keep up their peculiar line of work and get away with it so handily.

The sextet of Dutch "kiddies" was applauded again. Stanley Hawkins sang well and Neal McCay as the lady-killing governor showed in his song, "Ladies' Day Is Every Day with Me," what clean-cut and polished rendition can be given a little comic song.

"Three of Us" at Castle.

"The Three of Us," Rachel Crother's four-act play of Western life, came back to Boston yesterday via the John Craig Stock Company at the Castle Square Theatre. The program describes the piece as "a romantic comedy," but without the word "moral" no epithets are properly descriptive of it. The story holds up not less than one dozen morals, each strongly impressed.

Mary Young as Rhy MacChesney and Donald Meek as her brother Clem are the particular stars of the production. John Craig in a light heroic role does excellent work. Theodore Friebus, Oscar Johnson, George Hassell, William Evarts and Minnette Cleveland were good in their respective roles.

Star Playlets at Keith's

It's a bill of unusually fine features that is presented at Keith's this week, with three acts in particular shining with a brilliance far outshining the usual vaudeville productions. "Pixley's Prodigal Parents," a playlet offered by Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane, Miss Condon, Mr. Frohoff and Mr. Reinhart—all well suited to their parts and most appealing in their manner—is a comedy of rare charm, and has a theme which may well be written into a more lengthy production.

"Christmas on Blackwell's Island," showing the principals in their cells, is produced as originally arranged for a Lambs' Club gambol. It is a scream from start to finish, the vocal renditions of the quartet of prisoners being clever and the jokes new ones with fine points. Under the cryptic name of the "Eight Kellinos," a very attractive group of European acrobats present an act which beats out by far the stunts of the many Japanese troupes engaged in the same line of work.

Adeline Dunlap, Frank McCormack and little Viola Flugrath present "The Night of the Wedding," a tragic stepmother playlet, which was very well acted, but which, it appeared last evening, did not win popularity with a Keith audience, the theme being rather antique. Many of the musical and comedy acts were very well received.

"Too Many Wives" at Globe

Catchy songs, pretty girls and gorgeous costumes abound in "Too Many Wives," a bright, breezy and musical comedy in which Joe Morris, the quaint Hebrew funmaker, appeared for the first time at the Globe Theatre yesterday. It is a musical melange with a plot and without a dull line in the whole production.

Interspersed with the plot is a budget of catchy songs and witty lines. Joe Morris as Uncle Isadore Meyer, from Kansas City, who comes unexpectedly to visit his nephew is the big success.

Among the most popular numbers are "When the Moon Shines on Broadway," "Love and Money" and "My Honeysuckle Baby."

A Salome dance is the fitting climax. La Manolita is the artist and her dancing is a revelation.

Hollis Street Theatre.

George M. Cohan's musical travesty, "The American Idea," is still the bill at the Hollis Street Theatre, beginning the last week of its run there last evening before an audience which showed by vigorous applause that the talented young author has struck a popular chord in his latest stage offering. "The American Idea" has proven a great success, and its stay in Boston is too short to suit the public. It will be given next in New York, where it will remain the rest of the season. The "American Ragtime" finale is one of the biggest hits ever known.

Next week "The Round-up" returns.

Majestic Theatre.

Frank Keenan, Charlotte Walker and a splendid company of supporting players began their second, and last week at the Majestic Theatre last evening in "The Warrens of Virginia," a De Mille play, which was staged by Mr. Belasco with greatest care and attention to detail. The play is a very interesting drama with the scene laid in the South during war times and has made a strong impression with theatregoers. Mr. Keenan as General Buck Warren and Miss Walker as Agatha Warren, are seen in impersonations which increase their hold on public favor.

Next week Gertrude Hoffman will appear in her artistic dances with the Casino musical Fantasy, "The Mimic World."

Tremont Theatre.

Plays and operas may come and go at other theatres, but "The Merry Widow," at the Tremont Theatre, still continues to be a potent attraction with amusement seekers. In fact, the longer this remarkable Viennese operetta is given here the more it gains in popular favor. It began another week of a remarkable run last evening, and no first-night audience was ever better pleased. It is one of the few pieces that will bear repetition. Seen many times, it pleases more and more.

Park Theatre.

Marie Doro in "The Richest Girl" began the second week of her engagement at the Park Theatre last evening before an audience which showed the fulelst appreciation of the efforts of the dainty star and the merit of the play which was given its premier presentation in his city. The demand for seats is so great that Miss Doro has consented to play Wednesday matinees during the remainder of her stay in Boston. The paly is from the French and affords the star to display unexpected talents. It is an interesting stage work and interpreted by a very competent company.

Boston Theatre.

"The Old Homestead" is still at the Boston Theatre, with Denman Thompson in his famous character of the old New Hampshire farmer. This is the last week of his engagement in this house and the only one he will play in New England. He has played to crowded houses for more than three weeks, and the demand for seats for the remaining performances indicates that in the point of attendance this visit of star and company to this stage will be memorable.

Next week "If I Were King" will be presented by the stock company.

Orpheum Theatre.

There were a number of changes in "Bandanna Land" when given at the Orpheum Theatre last evening to signalize the beginning of the last week of its run in Boston. Mr. Walker and Aida Overton Walker gave a version of the "Merry Widow" waltz. Besides "the Genoe of her race" was seen in her famous "Salome" dance, which is one of the features of the whole entertainment. Mr. Williams varied his performance, too, and with new songs and new features the show had enough innovations to make the last week notable.

Next week the vaudeville season will begin with matinee daily.

High Finance at the Grand

"Wise Guy," Howard Hall, appeared at the head of his own company in "The Wall Street Detective," at the Grand Opera House last night, and made good from the start, both in the characters of Gordon Hale, the young Wall Street broker's clerk, and Lord Belmont.

The stirring play, which deals with a big bond robbery and the subsequent tracing and placing of the theft on the guilty persons, the attempted "Black Hand" outrage in trying to wreck a motor boat passing under a bridge, and the keen rivalry between the hero detective and the so-called "Count" for the hand of the banker's daughter, ending with the hero's success in the end, all proved "thrillers" to a delighted audience.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"The Princess of Patches" was the new offering at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday, Miss Charlotte Hunt, the popular leading lady, appearing in the role which suggests the play's title. She made her first entrance with feet and shoulders bare because it appears garments had been stolen by a tramp. Hal Clarendon played the tramp role of "Waggles," and all the stock favorites were in the strong cast. The moving pictures were as good as usual.

Howard Theatre.

The Avenue Girls were at the Howard yesterday, and it was a fun fest all through. The "Maid of the Alps" was the opening burlesque and it pleased the audience to the limit. In the company were such favorites as Helen Jesse Moore, the Chapman sisters, Lee Stevens, May Morrison and Helen Myers. The company and the house olio offerings were all fine.

Palace Theatre.

Waldron's Trocaderos were the company which opened the week at the Palace Theatre with a show right up to the high water mark of burlesque excellence. Such laughable satires as "Sweeney's Finish" and "Isle of Nowhere" kept the crowd in a roar. In the company are Frank Finney, Harry Buckley, Annie Hill, Lillie Waters, Annie Burke and others who are sure winners with the patrons of this house.

Columbia Theatre.

The Washington Society Girls appeared at the Columbia Theatre yesterday in burlesque and olio and made a hit with everybody in the big auditorium. There are forty, including such a great favorite as May Howard, and it is strong in skit and olio work. To-morrow evening John Perelli and Jack Sharkey will wrestle.

At the Museum.

The magnet which attracted thousands of amusement lovers to Tremont row yesterday was the big all-feature show at Austin & Stone's Museum. There were a score of attractions. The Silvers from Mexico are clever. Catulle's superb "Aphrodite" was another winning attraction. Angry leopards cavorting about a huge steel barred cage, in which the courageous "lady of the leopards," Pauline Russell, put the brutes through some novel stunts, gave a realistic representation of jungle life.

"Round-Up" Coming.

At the Hollis to-day the sale of seats opened for the return engagement of "The Round-Up," which will be given next week with all the features of realism that made it the talk of all New England last season.

Vaudeville Features.

The feature of features at the Idle Hour Theatre, in Castle Square this week is the Great Fenan, the king of handcuffs, who escapes from any regulation handcuff, leg iron or straight jacket that is in good working order. Fenan appears daily at 3 in the afternoon, 8:30 and 10 at night. His performances are thrilling. Moving pictures, pictorial ballads and vaudeville complete the performances which run continuously from 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 10:30 at night.

A bill that cannot be duplicated anywhere is the offering this week at the Hub. Stirring vaudeville, comedy, emotional and sensational picture successes, together with illustrated songs, makes up the program. On Thursday the entire program of vaudeville, pictures, songs and singers undergo a complete change.

A long varied bill of attractions and a host of interesting features at the Scenic Temple made the performance last evening most enjoyable to the great audience which filled this amusement house to its capacity. The motion pictures, which were new to Boston, were edifying and amusing, and the illustrated songs, sung by well-known artists, were enhanced by the artistic colored slides thrown upon the screen, depicting the stories of the songs. The several numbers constituting the olio were all received with heartiness, which left no doubt as to their appreciation by the audience.

Another premium bill is being presented at the Star Theatre this week. Every picture met with instant approval, "Old Sleuth, the Detective," being featured. "King Richard the Third" was handsomely staged.

THE WARRENS OF VIRGINIA

A Novel from the Romantic Belasco Production of the Play by William C. DeMille.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

MRS. WARREN laid her hand on the General's arm.

"Yes'm—I would. Mother, we must have had some no account ancestor who was po' white trash. It's enough to make a man forget he's a father, when his first bo'n turns out to be a discourteous traitor."

"But John—our daughter."

"That's it, mother," roared General Warren. "That's just it—our daughter!"

Agatha rose from the spinet. She came back with a firm step and faced her father squarely.

"I won't tell if I die for it," she said flatly. This done, she made a quick appealing speech to her mother.

"If these papers were dad's papers and on you, would you——"

"Ha!" The old soldier's spent form fairly leaped with excitement. "On you! Mother, did you hear? She has them on her person. Mother, search her. Send for Saphe to help you."

"Wait a minute, dad. I never lied to you—that is, not often. These papers are not exactly on my person—not on it."

"Not on it? What do you mean?"

"I mean that they're not. That is—no, they're not."

"Look here, I'm getting dog tired of this."

Old General Warren sank into a chair.

"Father," said the girl, "make everybody go out of the room—everybody but the family. I want to speak."

"No, miss, no! Say what you have to say befo' all."

Mrs. Warren interposed.

"You are not bringing out the best in Agather," she counseled. "You must appeal to her tender side. Try kindness, deah."

General Warren paused, and then motioned Blake and Burton from the room. Agatha faced her father, her mother and her brother.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Forgive Me; I've Failed You"

"DAD," said Agatha Warren, her hands clasped at her breast trembling, her blue eyes shining with excitement, her body vibrant with earnestness, "you say the whole army is likely to be saved if you know what's in those orders Lieutenant Burton had. You want me to give them up?

"I say it would be a dreadful thing to do for me to betray the secret, which you said was important, of a man who came here when he knew he shouldn't just because—because—O, father! Mother! Arty! I'll be frank with you. Lieutenant Burton and I—we have come to a sort—a sort of understandin'. We sort of care for each other. We're engaged, with your permission."

Mrs. Warren uttered a cry of tenderness. She ran to her daughter, embraced her and kissed her. Arthur walked over and kissed her tenderly also.

General Warren sat rigidly. But finally he put out his arm to Agatha. She put her arms around his neck. As he kissed her, old Warren said:

"My little, little girl. Well, well! Arthur call him."

"Ned!" cried young Warren down the hallway, and motioned Blake to permit the prisoner to advance alone.

General Warren arose. The night's gamut of emotions was wearing the enfeebled man down. His voice was weak and unsteady.

"Lieutenant Burton," he said, in his manner of elaborate dignity, "my daughter has told me the understanding. The mere fact that you forgot your military duty to see my girl shows how deeply rooted your feelings are. The sentiment of it appeals to me strongly—very, very strongly.

"When the war is over, sir, I will give her to you, sir. Nothing shall stand in the way of my daughter's happiness."

His thin hand went out and clasped upon the hand of his child. He bent and kissed it.

"The most finished dancer in Virginia, sir," he said, as with early century gallantry he placed the hand of his daughter in that of the bewildered Burton.

It was not, however, the proud and affectionate father, but General Warren of Lee's army who next spoke.

"Now that felicitations are over, I'll trouble you for these dispatches, Agatha."

My Future Husband

The girl looked at him resolutely.

"I owe allegiance to my future husband as well as to my father, now," she answered.

"Aggie! Aggie!" he said sharply.

"No, dad, no. I cannot give up those dispatches."

"Aggie, there is something above love at a time like this."

He stopped. A distant bugle call rang sweet-toned in the night.

"Lee and the army are near, sir," reported the sentinel, leaning in at the doorway.

"Daughter," began old Warren, and there was a searching vibrancy of speech in his voice, "you hear? Our boys are marching on here. Their poor, worn feet are leavin' tracks of blood behind them as they march. Do you understand what that means, child? They'll soon be at our door, broken by want. And what can we give them? Nothing! For there is nothing but black starvation in all the country round."

The bugle sang again, louder, clearer.

"My little girl we ask your help," Agatha's father continued. "Can you hesitate when parched mouths and cracked lips are suffering for what you can put into them?"

Tears welled in the girl's blue eyes, but she stood with hands clenched firmly and held rigidly at her sides.

"Aggie!" cried General Warren. And now his voice was hoarse and feeble, his lean body was swaying. "What do you want me to do to move you? I will—I will—I'll do what I have never done to any one but God! I'll go down on my knees to——"

He half fell forward to carry out this purpose, but suddenly Agatha, with a high cry of deprecation, went down upon her knees and caught her father's hand, steadying him so that he stood again.

"Father," she sobbed, "I'll do anything."

General Warren moved toward his armchair and fell into it. The girl clung to him.

"I cant bear it. I can't bear it," she murmured.

Then she arose. Her eyes sought Burton's face.

"Ned, Ned, you won't think I don't love you. Oh, dad, I'm going to do a dreadful thing for you and Arthur and—and my country."

Stooping swiftly, she extracted the dispatch from her slipper and laid the document in her father's hands.

And again she looked at Ned. He hardly saw her. His misty eyes were gazing at the floor.

She made her way quickly toward the door. She looked back.

"Ned, Ned, I've failed you! Forgive me!"

She did not look for any sign from him, but fled from the room.

EXPRESS TRAIN KILLS WOMAN

An Italian woman, thirty years of age, was instantly killed at Central Square grade crossing of the Boston & Maine Railroad, Lynn, to-day. The body was taken to Hazen's undertaking rooms to await identification.

The young woman was hurrying across the tracks at 7 o'clock this morning in front of an in-bound train and did not notice a train bound from Boston which was approaching at high speed. The locomotive struck her and her body was carried fifty feet before the train was stopped. The body was terribly mangled.

LONG DROUTH IN PITTSBURG BROKEN

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29.—The long-protracted drouth in Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia is effectually broken. The light rainfall, which began last night and continued intermittently during the morning, was general throughout the stricken territory.

CHESTER JORDAN SUED FOR $185

Chester S. Jordan, who is awaiting trial in the East Cambridge Jail for the murder of his wife, was sued to-day by John Chute, a carpenter, of No. 199 Berkeley street, Boston. Chute seeks to recover $185.30 which he alleges is due him for work done on Jordan's store between August 31 and September 4.

Jordan's bank account of $300 in the Bay State Trust Company has been attached.

JORDAN HEARING AGAIN DELAYED

Chester S. Jordan, accused of murdering and dismembering his wife in their Somerville home, was to have been arraigned before Judge Frederick Lawton in the Middlesex County Superior Criminal Court in East Cambridge yesterday, but shortly before 10 o'clock District Attorney Higgins received word by telephone from the prisoner's attorneys that they were not ready. Sheriff Fairbairn was notified that he need not take Jordan to court. No new date has been set for the arraignment, but it must be by Friday next.

MAKES PLEA TO SAVE FORESTS

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The feature of to-day's session of the semi-annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers was the strong plea made by President Charles T. Plunkett of Adams, Mass., for the conservation of the natural resources of the country, the forests.

The manufacturers assembled at 10 o'clock in the United States Hotel. They are principally from the New England States. Among the items on the program for to-day are:

"What Is Plain Cloth? What Is Plain Weave?" by Alfred Goodale of Boston.

"Relations Between Cones and Byers Upon Cotton Roving Frames," by Fay Hamlin Martin of Boston.

FLEET FAST NEARS MANILA

MANILA, Sept. 29.—With the American battleship fleet 1,000 miles away and scheduled to arrive here on Saturday morning, all preparations have been abolished for their reception at orders from Governor-General Smith except those relating to the water parade. This step is being taken on account of the danger from cholera.

The repair ship Panther arrived at Zomboanga yesterday reporting that the fleet was 440 miles behind her.

BOY HELD ON THEFT CHARGE

Alfred J. McGuinness, sixteen years old, of No. 56 Yeoman street, was arraigned in the Boston Juvenile Court to-day before Judge Baker and held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury. He was charged with the larceny of promissory notes valued at $44,819.16 from W. R. Chester of No. 19 Doane street. The boy was arrested September 23 by Inspectors Harris and Robinson of Police Headquarters.

The Tigers got a little stronger hold on that leading spot in the American League race yesterday, because they won and Cleveland did not play, and the White Sox could only get a draw, which did not help them any, as they remained stationary. As the best the Browns could do was to break even with New York, their standing did not receive any hoisting, and they are practically eliminated from the charmed circle now.

If the weather is good in the West to-day there will be some interesting doubleheaders on tap, as the Naps are scheduled for two with the Athletics and the Red Sox will double up with the White Sox to play off their draw of yesterday.

Winning two games in one day is not the rule, and the Naps and the White Sox are up against it, playing teams who will strive to upset them if superior ball will do it.

The weather my yet cause a split up in the remaining games in the schedules, which will have some influence on the pennant chase, and the team which can get its contests played off and win them will have all the best of it.

The National League race shifted slightly, because rain stopped the Cubs, and the Pirates had an open date, which allowed the Giants to add to their total by beating the Phillies in the opening game of their long series, though they had to stretch themselves to get the verdict.

That win jumped the Giants a game and a half away from the Cubs, and even if they lose to-day will not be forced out of first position unless the Cubs can bang out a couple from the Cincinnati Reds at one swoop.

Pittsburg may give the Cubs trouble if they are more successful in taking the tailend St. Louis team into camp twice.

DRISCOLL AFTER BOUT HERE WITH ATTELL

BY TAD.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Jim Driscoll, arrived in this city ready to defend his arrived in this ready ready to defend his title against all comers. Like Rhoderick Dhu in "The Lady of the Lake," Jim puts his foot on the featherweight rock and chirps, "Come one, come all; this rock shall fly from its firm base as soon as I."

He is a dapper little fellow, with a cockney accent, a green lid and a green suit. "They're all wearing green on the other side now," said Jim, after the introductions.

"Yes, I'm anxious to get either Moran or Attell. I knocked Bowker out in our last meeting, but in the first one he went the limit. Johnny Summers lost to me in the second round on a foul. I beat Charles Griffin over there before he came here, you know. Yes, that was my last battle.

"I don't know whether I'll go West or not. Just now I want to see this big city of yours and take in a few of the others before I get right down to business.

"You see, I'm ready to fight now if I was called upon," said Jim, taking off his shirt to pose for pictures. "But I want a bit of rest, and then I'll get going.

"My age? Why, I'm just twenty-seven, and I feel as though I was sixteen. When I left they told me that Gunner Moir was coming over to fight some of the big men you have here. He ought to get on a big match, I think. He fights hard every minute of the time and is a terribly game fellow. Well, I'll take in that baseball game this afternoon. Good day."

* * *

Billy Delaney and Al Kaufman blew in from Frisco yesterday and started to hunt for an opponent right away. We met Bill on broadway with his big fighter, and he was tickled to death to see his old town again. Every time Bill lands he hunts up his old gang down around Canal street, and there they hold a meeting that lasts way into the night.

* * *

"I hear this fellow Stuart is some fighter," said Bill, tilting his hat and smiling. "Well, you can say that Al is realy to meet any of them. He knocked Flinn out in Los Angeles in quicker time than Johnson or Burns, and then beat Jack Twin Sullivan, who beat Burns. There wasn't any one left for him out there, and we were forced to come East. They tell me that Gunner Moir is on his way over. Well, he'll suit us to a T.

"How was that Gans fight?" Al asked one of the crowd.

* * *

Cute little Eddie Hanlon is wearing a nose guard now while boxing in the gymnasium for his go with Moran, which takes place Wednesday night in 'Frisco. Eddie's beak always has the bark rubbed off in his practice bouts, but this time he's going into the ring with it in its natural condition. They think so well of Eddie out there now that they're betting $8 against $10 that he beats Moran.

Charley Harvey will stay there until the go is over.

Y. L.—Yes, Billy Elmer was an actor at one time in San Francisco. Don't know whether he ver played the part of the disappearing lady or not.

Last we heard of Bill he was up in Harlem "taking things easy."

A fan writes in:

"Even though Chicago does lose the next four games and the Giants win four straight, the Cubs have a Chance (on first).

* * *

There was an awful roar around town the other night after a fight in one of our swell clubs. The fight was stopped by the referee because he thought it was a frame-up. One of the men declared that he was sick and unable to box properly. There's very little nourishment in that for the man who paid $5 for his seat.

Where are the club doctors who are supposed to examine the boxers? Why not let the newspapers know so that they can tell the sports one of the men is sick?

How do we know but at the next go another might be sick? How about a little light on these things to save the poor sport-loving public occasionally?

METS' ANXIOUS FOR NEW YORK SPEEDWAY RACE

In canvassing the members of the Metropolitan Driving Club regarding the proposition of Andrew Crawford of the New York Driving Club that the two best trotters and two best pacers of each organization meet to decide the speedway championship of America over the course of either as the toss of a cent may elect, it seems to be the general opinion that the best six trotters be selected and the best four pacers from each club, for it would be fully as cheap to ship a carload of horses as for four, and there would be more sport in having the extra number of horses in the races.

So pleased was E. A. Jones of Chelsea over the victory of his trotter, Commodore Forbes, in the last matinee of the Fellsway Driving Club that he has joined the Metropolitans and will be seen in the Charles River speedway races, beginning with next week Tuesday.

A couple of new trophies have been added to the collection for the winners of the Fall series of matinees at Charles River speedway in a harness offered by A. J. Furbush and a cup donated by the N. G. Wood Company. The race committee will decide in a few days the conditions governing the winning of the prizes named.

Sam Corey says that he now believes it has been a mistake in having his mare Queensland go on a trot, as he thinks she is a natural pacer. On this account he has requested Henry Titer to put her pacing and have her ready for the two-weeks' meeting next month in Nashua.

PERELLI HAS TOUGH JOB.

John Perelli will have to travel some to win from Jack Sharkey in the wrestling bout scheduled at the Columbia Theatre to-morrow night, as the Irish boy is in the finest condition and ready to bring the battle right to the teeth of the Italian. Sharkey put up a magnificent struggle a few weeks ago against Leo Pardello, and were it not for the fact that he was out of trim he might have succeeded in getting the decision over Pardello, as it was he gained one fall. The match tomorrow night will probably be as exciting as the Link-Perelli bout of last season, which is still fresh in the minds of the fans.

COLLINS WILL BE A MANAGER

BUFFALO, Sept. 30.—It is said that Jimmy Collins, the Athletics' third baseman, formerly of the Boston Americans, would leave the big leagues this Winter. Collins is slated to manage the Buffalo club of the Eastern League next year.

This season Collins slowed up so much that he barely held his place. Manager Mack realized that he would be of little service next year and gave his permission for Collins to make any arrangements he desired.

PERELLI WILL MEET SHARKEY

With two such fast wrestlers as John Perelli and Jack Sharkey lined up for battle in a finish contest the Columbia Theatre will not be large enough to accommodate the fans who are anxious to see the tussle to-morow night. It is by far the biggest wrestling card of the season so far, and one that will be no easy matter to referee. The men are evenly matched as far as strength goes, but in the matter of experience Perelli has a shade the better of his opponent. Sharkey will strive hard to win and will no doubt give Perelli all he wants, not alone in wrestling, but in any game that the Italian starts. The bout will be in catch-as-catch-can style, which just suits the Irish champion, and will give the fans a run for their money.

Sharkey is a brother of the famous sailor pugilist, Tom Sharkey, and resembles Frank Gotch in build and action. He is looked upon by many as the coming world's champion in wrestling, and is also an expert with the mits.

This will be Perelli's first appearance of the season and a large gathering of his fellow countrymen will be on hand to see that their idol gets as much encouragement as the Irish favorite.

GANS ANXIOUS TO GET BUSY IN THE RING

Former Champion Joe Gans is evidently not averse to picking up a little loose change if it comes his way, as the following letter to a friend in New York will explain:

"Just a few lines to let you know that I am in condition to box and will accept matches, providing I get the terms for my services. I also want the fight promoters to understand, too, that I will not fight any of those big fellows. I will agree to meet legitimate lightweights if I am given enough for my end to train for the mills. I think that I am still good enough to make those six-round fighters around New York and Philadelphia fight their heads off to beat me.

"I do not feel any bad effects from my recent hard mill in San Francisco with Battling Nelson, and I am just as strong as before the mill. The distance was a little too far, and I still think that I can turn the trick on Nelson in a short battle, as I can still set a pretty fast clip.

"I have received a number of offers from various managers in the East, but I have accepted none as yet. I have been paying attention to my hotel interests in Baltimore since I returned from the Coast, but I feel a little lonesome unless I have a mill on hand. My friends want me to box, because they have faith in me to beat all of the best men in this section in short-distance affairs.

"Boxing in New York and Philadelphia will not interfere with my business, as I can box in those cities and not be forced to remain away from home more than a day or two, whereas if I fought out West I would be away from my hotel for a month or more and the expenses going and coming and out there are very high.

"I have a gymnasium in my hotel, and without leaving it I could prepare for six-round bouts, doing a little road work in the parks in the early morning.

"If any of those so-called champions think they can lick me they will have to see me first, as I still have a little lightweight championship form in my frame and have some hard battles left.

Yours respectfully, JOE GANS.

CHAMP PAPKE WILL FIGHT HUGO KELLY

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Middleweight Champion Billy Papke and Hugo Kelly, the local fighter, were matched to mill ten rounds on October 15 before the Milwaukee Athletic Club, the weight to be 158 pounds at 6 o'clock. Charlie White of New York, will referee.

The scrappers are to get 55 per cent. of the gross receipts, and the first $5,000 will go to the champion, win, lose or draw. Kelly's end will come out of the remainder if there is any. It is a cheerful thing making matches with champions these days.

NANCY HANKS COLTS.

The two-year-old filly Nancy McKerron, by John A. McKerron (2:04½), dam Nancy Hanks (2:04), has taken a record of 2:25¾, and another jewel is added to old Nancy's crown. It is likely that this one-time queen of trotters has never produced a foal that could not beat 2:20, unless it is the one she produced by the thoroughbred stallion Meddler. Four of Nancy Hanks's foals now have standard records, two being in the 2:10 list, and she is easily as remarkable a brood mare as she was a trotter.

MURPHY RULES FAVORITE OVER MATTY BALDWIN

All Gotham as well as the Hub fans are interested in the ring match at the Armory A. A. to-night, when Matty Baldwin and Tommy Murphy meet in a twelve-round bout.

That it will be a slashing mill all the way is certain, as the last time they met, which was at Chelsea in fifteen rounds, there was no better glove affair ever seen on the card, and now both boys are going better than at any time in their careers.

The importance of the bout appeals to both fighters and they have been training hard, Murphy at Northboro and Baldwin at Diamond Hill, fitting themselves for the tough encounter which they know is at hand.

Experts figure that Murphy, who is one of the fastest traveling pugs in the world at short distance, will have a better chance than Matty in twelve rounds than he did in fifteen, and therefore he will rule a slight favorite over the Charlestown puncher.

Baldwin has won the reputation of upsetting the classiest fighters, and for that reason there is a feeling that he may turn the trick on the Pride of Harlem, as he always shows better the more noted his opponent is.

There are two good preliminary bouts, as Bill McKinnon boxes Jack Cunningham of the U. S. S. Chester in a ten-round bout, and many tars will be at the ringside to back the champion of the navy.

The other prelim is an eight-round bout betwen Willie Grupp of St. Louis, sparring partner of Tommy Murphy and Kid Mercier of Lawrence.

MAJOR DELMAR STILL FAST.

All things considered, Major Delmar, 1:59¾, is still a wonderful trotter. This is his ninth campaign, and recently he trotted a third heat in 2:06¾, the last quarter in :30¾. Talk about iron horses.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—By their speedy tactics in the closing round of the wind-up at the West End A. C. Harry Baker of Frisco and Teddy Maloney of this city brought the crowd to its feet. The bout went the six-round limit.

BIG BASEBALL CONTEST ENDS NEXT THURSDAY NOON

Come on, you fans! It is nearly the final call for coupons in the BOSTON AMERICAN Baseball Contest for the most popular professional and amateur player, as the last vote must be in this office by noon on Thursday.

In the last clean-up of the coupons on hand McConnell comes right next to the sixty thousand column, and is 4,376 ahead of "Old Cy" Young. Many votes were, too, added for Bowerman.

Curley is still leading for the amateurs, his command over Cardio being now 1,695 votes. Broders is by no means out of the battle though 3,626 coupons back of the leader. In fact, this is true of the first seven amateurs in the list, for there is no knowing how much of a reserve vote have any to cast at he last minute. The standing:

GAYETY RULES BIG FOOD FAIR AT COLISEUM

"Grown-Ups" and Children Enter Into Spirit of Brilliant Exhibit.

ENJOY SOUSA'S CONCERTS

With music and gaiety, spectacular electrical display and true holiday spirit, the Boston Retail Grocers' Association opened its seventh annual Food Fair at the Park Square Coliseum yesterday. Hundreds and hundreds of visitors thronged the handsomely decorated hall, and the "kiddies" were there in mobs. It was one grand big "party" to them, a wonderful fairy sort of party where all the things one ever wanted at all one's parties are served up in gorgeous array simultaneously.

And the way they paraded from the orangeade booth to the ice cream cone venders, and then through the maze of chocolate booths and cookie stalls and jelly tables was enough to make even the most optimistic fear for their digestion.

Chrysanthemum Parade.

The grown folks were equally appreciative. The children took everything as a matter of fact, and revelled in it, but the "grownups" realized the amount of work and expense involved and praised the skill of the designer and managers.

M. A. Singer of New York is the designer, constructor and decorator, and the finished work does him great credit.

The inspiring strains of the famed Sousa's Band give an air of festivity, and the uniquely designed electrical display adds to the atmosphere, which is wholly that of a happy care-free fete day.

Everybody at the fair wears a huge crinkly paper chrysanthemum in colors that rival nature's own, and the mystery of where all these posies come from is explained when one reaches a booth that is a mass of the mammoth flowers, where, by partaking of the cool drinks offered for sale, one can join the flower brigade.

Chefs Ready to Serve.

Never were the foods, products and novelties more appealingly or attractively displayed, and samples of everything are free and courteously given. The immaculate chefs and the pretty attendants and demonstrators are all there ready to serve.

PIANOS AND ORGANS | PIANOS AND ORGANS.

PIANOS NOW COMING IN FROM SWELL SUMMER RESORTS

To Be Sold at Less Than Cost

WE HAVE almost 100 of the finest pianos in America on sale this week at sacrifice—About 75 of them are the Piano Trust's finest products—They were new June 1st, and have only been slightly used. We have put them in first-class condition and guarantee them to be as good as new, and being Piano Trust instruments, we take great pleasure in cutting and double cutting the price. When the representative of any piano house, especially a house in the Piano Trust, tells you not to come to us for a piano, he does so with the fear in his heart that you will see on our sacrifice floor, when you do come, the same make new piano that he has tried to sell you, marked with our sacrifice tag at a price from $100 to $150 less than he asked. See us on any make piano, new or second-hand, get our price, that's all we ask. We buy pianos for spot cash anywhere.

$5 Down—$1 a Week The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

ESTABLISHED 1863 Always Under One Management

THE HENRY F. MILLER PLAYER-PIANO

Combines in one instrument the features that have made ALL Henry F. Miller pianos famous for nearly half a century, together with a pneumatic self-playing action that enables ANY ONE to perform the finest piano compositions at once without previous practice and without fatigue.

It stands SUPREME among player-pianos.
Its effects are MUSICAL—not mechanical.
It IMPROVES rather than deteriorates with usage.
It is a STANDARD by which to judge the relative merits of other player-pianos.

TO OUR OLD PATRONS

The demand upon us for slightly used Henry F. Miller pianos is at all times so great we are enabled thereby to offer our old patrons very liberal allowances for their pianos in exchange for new HENRY F. MILLER PLAYER-PIANOS.

Women Useless as Fighters in War Time

Therefore, Says Foolishness, Women Should Not Vote

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner.

In England some gentleman with a very fat brain has discovered that woman cannot vote, because if she voted she would be man's equal, and she must remain "man's subordinate." Why must she remain man's subordinate? Very simple, according to the fat, thoughtful English brain.

"War is the ultima ratio" (if you know what that is). "Woman is incapable of taking her share in war, and, therefore, as man must FIGHT, man must be the boss and woman must never vote."

That is about as strong as the average objection to giving women the right to protect themselves with the ballot.

Among the Sandwich islanders they made a rule that no woman should get into a boat. Even to-day a Sandwich Island woman, fairly civilized, is rather frightened when she steps into a boat. For centuries they taught the women that the boat was "taboo." Their very religion taught them that they must never go into the water, except as individual swimmers. That is why the Sandwich Island women swim so marvelously.

They were taught that it was IRRELIGIOUS for women to get into a boat. As a matter of fact, the wise husbands didn't want the foolish wives to run from one island to the other looking for a better husband. Hence the boat superstition.

Wise men to-day realize their own inferiority, and they don't want to give the vote to the women, just as the Sandwich Islanders didn't want to give the boat to the women. They are afraid that the women might vote themselves into a better condition of society, and, incidentally, vote for laws that would make the worthless husband a little less worthless, and the heartless employer a little less heartless.

It is amusing to hear men say that women cannot be the equals of men because the men fight and the women don't.

WHO SUPPLIES THE MEN THAT DO THE FIGHTING?

Would there be any fighters without women? Would there be any soldiers without women? Isn't Maxim, who manufactures the rapid-fire gun, at least as much a fighter as the ordinary soldier that turns the crank and sends out the bullets? Certainly the man that MAKES the gun is at least as good as the gun, or the shooter.

Isn't the woman who MAKES the soldier as good as the soldier?

Incidentally, it is no longer true that women are not the equals of men in fighting.

Once upon a time fighting was a question of brutal energy. Now it is a matter of pulling a trigger.

A woman weighing eighty pounds can take care of a man weighing two hundred and fifty pounds, if the woman has the revolver and sees the burglar promptly.

Of course, women never WILL engage in war; men themselves will not be fighting very MUCH longer.

One of the quickest ways of ending the fighting, stopping the brutal slaughter, and making this earth a half-way decent abode of half-way decent human beings IS TO GIVE WOMEN THE BALLOT.

Give women the votes, and they will soon decide that better use shall be made of the sons that they give to the earth than using them up, as Napoleon said, as "flesh for cannon."

FRANK PARSONS

Hero, Teacher and People's Servant

In the death of Professor Frank Parsons in this city last Saturday morning the working men and women of this country—and it would not be too much to say of other countries, too—lost their most devoted and perhaps their most useful teacher.

Every cause and movement that strives for fair dealing among men, for a progress that blesses all, will sadly miss the voice and tireless pen that told long before the average run of men were ready for it of the things that were surely coming to be.

A prophet speaks not only of things religious. To him economic and political problems are interwoven with life and with faith. Professor Parsons was such a prophet.

His well-earned title of professor came to him by duties as such in several colleges and universities in this country. But his real college and his largest classes were in mankind at large. New Zealand and the North End of Boston both claimed his heart and mind.

To the North End he has given his most fruitful and most painful last years. As the leader of the Breadwinners' Institute of the Civic Service House, founded four years ago, he showed that the hand worker, the shop, store and factory toiler, has a hunger and capacity for a liberal education that should be ministered unto.

His work was done so well that the splendid courses of this institute will open next week, carried on by the people he has inspired with his purposes.

Hard work kept him alive during the agonizing last twelvemonth. Professor Parsons, gifted and learned beyond the average, marvellously resourceful, brilliant in debate, died a poor man. Large rewards were thrust upon him. He put them aside, forgetful of self. He lived for others.

An age that produces a Frank Parsons is not altogether a materialistic age.

Parliament of the Cheeses

By James J. Montague

Being the minutes of an indignation meeting when Herman Ridder, the Limburger Envoy, was made chairman of the Democratic National Committee

THEN up spake Count Fromage de Brie; a husky, musky cheese was he:
"On Bill-of-faires
Of millionaires
Am I ze leading feature;
And zat is why I do not see why Bryan say, 'Abas!' to me
And wiz acclaim
Gives place and fame
To zis Limburgaire creature!"

Said Edam: "It's all wrong! Tut, tut! I'm not so strong as Limburg, but I'm thick and tough,
And old enough,
Though round and hale and hearty;
To use a zoologic term, I'm something of a pachyderm,
And should have some
High honor from
The Democratic party!"

"Well, as for me," quoth Camembert, "you always know when I am there!
A man can tell
Exceeding well
Whenever I'm his neighbor.
I think I'm due for honors high, for on this Bryan may rely,
I'll last as long,
And stay as strong
As his great speech on labor!"

"Pish, tush!" said Roquefort. "Never mind; though Democrats may prove unkind,
And all our claim
To lofty fame
Admit not nor consider,
Limburger cheese itself must be as peevish and annoyed as we
To have to mix
In politics
Along with Herman Ridder!"

Bad Cooking and Divorces

By Winifred Black

"EVERY time I see a woman going home with a bag of baker's rolls," said a clever clergyman the other day to his congregation, "I feel as if I had had 'At home' cards from the devil."

Poor man! I wonder if he has eve tried any of the home-made bread that some of our aunts and cousins make right now.

A woman who will buy baker's breac when she knows how to bake the ree article at home, is a goose.

But, oh! You can eat crackers, o even imported English biscuit, rathe than some of the bread I had to preten to eat at a nice, clean, orderly house th other day.

I went to the house on business. The mistress of it was in the yard, with her elbows on the back fence. It took me two hours and a quarter to get her to tell me what she could just as well have told in ten minutes. She tried hard enough, but she couldn't seem to fix her mind on any one subject.

Well among other diversions and interruptions, she insisted that I stay to lunch—and I stayed.

The children came home from school and she gave them a banana and a piece of soggy bread apiece and told them to run along.

They didn't run. How could they, wit such a meal as that to give them strength And then we sat down and had som fried meat and half-done potatoes, an some soggy bread, and some pie that wa a crime against the innocent.

"My husband would get a divorce fron me if I bought baker's stuff," said the mistress of the house. "He gets awfu mad whenever I try to do it. My, but he is cranky about things to eat!"

Cranky! I should think a man wh had to live on such food as that poo woman provided would go raving craz and be done with it.

Now, that woman spends three-fourth of her day in trivial gossipy idleness.

Why on earth doesn't she put her minc to it and learn how to cook a decent meal and serve it decently?

Whenever I read in the papers of wife-beatings and wife-desertions I think of that luncheon and wonder whether the men in the published cases have to eat that kind of stuff.

If they do, I don't blame them for the desertion. Do you?

Don'ts for Doubters

DON'T think for a minute that a womar loves her friends with the same inten sity that she hates her enemies.

Don't judge a man's ability by what h gets instead of by what he earns. He ma get more than he earns.

Don't argue with a man who talks loud You couldn't convince him in a thousan years.

Don't boast of your good judgment ever time you happen to have made a good guess.

Don't forget that conscience makes more bluffers than it does cowards.

Don't lend your influence with the expe tation of getting it back.

J. V. Dittemore Answers Chesterton, the Great English Critic.

[In a recent number of the BOSTON AMERICAN, Gilbert K. Chesterton the famous English critic, published a savage attack on Christian Scienc and its teachings. By way of giving both sides, the AMERICAN publishes to day an energetic reply by J. V. Dittemore. Mr. Dittemore is one of the strongest men in Christian Science circles and speaks with personal autho ity as representing a successful business man who believes in Christian Sci ence as a guide to life.]

By J. V. Dittemore

OUR British friend, Mr. Gilbert K. Chesterton, who has seldom been guilty of agreeing with any of the rest of the human race, and whose business it is to act as critic-at-large for his fellow mortals, seems to have fallen a victim to the belief that the tremendous growth and activity in the Christian Science movement in his native land gives promise of a new and fertile field for self-exploitation. In apparent fulfillment of this belief, he has favored the public with a characteristic tirade, the astonishing originality of which is only equalled by its inaccuracy.

This worthy champion of orthodoxy very lovingly decides that his interests will be best served by defining Christian Science as "a mean and disgusting philosophy, which comes from hell," and he then discloses his utter ignorance of the subject by gratuitously assuming that its teachings inculcate cruelty and contempt for the weak, and that its advocates ignore suffering and refuse to recognize the existence of pain.

Nothing could be further from the facts than these accusations. It is the business of every Christian Scientist, to whatever extent he is able, to console the sorrowing and bind up the broken-hearted.

Refuted by Practice

Surely the daily practice of the adherents of this religion is a sufficient refutation of Mr. Chesterton's strictures in this direction. "The tender word and Christian encouragement of an invalid," says Mrs. Eddy, "pitiful patience with his fears and the removal of them are better than hecatombs of gushing theories, stereotyped borrowed speeches, and the doling of arguments, which are but so many parodies on legitimate Christian Science, aflame with divine love." (Science and Health, p. 367.)

Christian Science denies the existence of sin and disease in the sense of their being any part of God's "very good" creation. The life and practice of Jesus Christ indicated very plainly that He recognized physical disease as wholly abnormal and illegitimate, and as the result of sin, including ignorance and false beliefs.

Through the metaphysical process He described as "knowing the truth" He promised that mortals were to be made "free" from the penalties of these deceptions. He said to one sufferer that "Satan" had "bound" her, not that God had caused her disease, or that it was so great a reality "that even the Creator could feel it," but that it was the result of that which He so clearly defined as "a liar," a deception.

It is through the understanding of the omnipotence of God and His ever-present availability, as taught in Christian Science, that the impotence of sin and disease become apparent. This does not mean that the existence of these evils as a part of erring human experience is not recognized, or that they are ignored; but it does mean that their pretense is unmasked and thei claims grappled with and overcome throug a realization of the truth of being.

Two Theories Compared

Our critic endeavors to further suppor his contentions by the theories that Go admits the limitations of pain, thinks o death with awe and occasionally feel weak Himself.

While this may be Mr. Chesterton's con ception of Deity, Christian Scientists mu confess that they take quite an opposit position. Their God is omnipotent and a mighty, in all that these words imply; th Creator of a perfect creation, who neithe knows nor supports sin, sickness an death. These, they affirm, are but th phenomena of our present erroneous, ma terial existence, which must give place to the eternal, harmonious and spiritual fact of being when mortals realize that God's universe is that "new heaven and new earth" described by St. John where "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any pain; for the former thing has passed away."

Christian Science affirms that this kingdom of heaven is not a far off locality, but is a condition of spiritual understanding and demonstration, attainable by mortals here and now.

Our critic further strengthens his position as the opponent of practically all the rest of humanity, when he affirms that "the strongest and most distinctive note of Christianity" is the "talk of the body and the blood."

Spiritual Power Supreme

'Christian Scientists believe that the dominating "note" of true Christianity is the supremacy of spiritual power, and that the import of the teachings of the Old Testament, as well as the mission of the Saviour, was to prove that mortals must gain dominion over the flesh, which "profiteth nothing," through the Spirit, which "giveth life."

The signs of the times indicate unmistakably that the world is tiring of materiality, with its forms, symbols and "the contentions of creeds," and that it is rapidly approaching the time when, as prophesied in a recent issue of the Westminster Review, it "will recognize no God who leaves his own creatures to wriggle and writhe through unmerited pain and sorrow to a doubtful heaven or undeserved hell" when "it will not exalt and preserve suffering and poverty on the unwarranted assumption that such misery forms the safes passport to paradise," and when it wi refuse to accept "the theological anaesthetics administered to lull men to present slumber by persuading them of the eventual righting of all human ills."

Christian Science declares its principles, its rules of practice and its promise, and then willingly awaits the hour when humanity will perceive, and in some measure approve, the inestimable value of its mission.
